THREE DEAD, SCORES HURT IN NORTH END

VICTIMS OF NORTH END CRASH

THE DEAD

JOHN MAZER of Intervals street, Roxbury.
JOSEPH ADOLPH of No 50 East Springfield street, South End, the contractor for the building.
UNINDENTIFIED MAN.

THE INJURED

Samuel Swartz of No. 248 Cambridge street, Boston; Morris F. Karger, No. 1 8 Arlington street, Chelsea; Reuben Karger, No. 176 Arlington strat, Chelsea; Patrick F. McArdle, No. 45 Middlesex street; Francesco Zerraro, Salvatore Ferrio, Antonio Marova, Giuseppe Lagaina, Salvatore Taimelle, Giovanni Businishio.

Three men are known to be dead, one is dying and ten are injured as the result of the collapse of a building shortly after noon in the North End, at the corner of Hanover and Battery streets.

The building was a five-story brick structure just nearing completion. The contractor was Joseph Adolph. He was killed. The men at work on the building had quit for dinner and were on the street floor eating when the crash came.

CRASH HEARD FOR BLOCKS.

The crash of the tumbling brick and the broken timbers could be heard for blocks. The greatest excitement followed. This is one of Boston's most congested residence sections and great crowds of people swarmed to the scene.

The Rev. Father John Powers of St. Stephen's Church heard of the accident and rushed to the scene to do anything that he could to comfort the injured and dying.

Two men were taken from the ruins at once. It was seen that they had been crushed lifeless. Box 10 was rung and firemen rushed to the place and began to work aggressively to dig out the buried men.

In a short time they came to the body of a young man dressed in a blue suit. He was about thirty years of age. He wore a bachelor button in the lapel of his coat. He had been killed instantly.

Another man rescued from the ruins was badly crushed. He was rushed to the Relief Station.

The doors of the building dropped through, and one corner which was to have been a store toppled over. Located at this corner was a small building in which the contractors kept their tools. It was about this little structure that the men were sitting, eating their dinners.

The great crash of falling bricks and mortar smashed the small structure flat, completely burying the men. A bystander who witnessed the fall of the building said that not one of the men had a chance to escape.

Digging Out Buried Men.

Fire Chief Brady was soon on the scene and took charge of the collapsed structure until he summoned from the Building Department Commissioner Everett. Then Commissioner Everett superintended the attempt to dig out the buried workmen.

Immediately after the accident moans could be heard beating from the great pile of bricks. Later a time they became silent.

The firemen worked under the greatest difficulties in the great danger. The walls of the building stood in almost shell form. They trembled, and it was feared that even a small gust of wind would topple them over.

As soon as the news spread through that section of the city that the building had fallen many of the women ran to the structure crying for fear that some of their loved ones had been caught. The police had great difficulty in restraining the crowd.

Policemen on Guard.

Men and women pressed toward the shell, and had it not been for the police they would have rushed into what was left of the building. An extra squad of policemen were called and it became necessary for them to stretch ropes around the building.

The crowd extended a block away, filling all of the radiating streets.

When the building began to croak two men who were on the second story jumped to the street. They were Morris F. Karger and Reuben Karger, of No. 176 Arlington street, Chelsea. They were badly bruised, but sustained no serious injuries.

It was learned that the young man, who was taken from the building dead dressed in a blue suit, was a collector who had gone there to collect a bill. He had hardly stepped into the building when he was buried under a great mass of falling brick.

Patrick F. McArdle, a teamster, employed by the Tremont Wine Company, was just turning from Battery into Hanover street when the building collapsed. The force of the falling building threw the team onto the sidewalk, and McArdle fell out, striking both elbows and smashing them.

Fire Chief Mullen reached the scene and conferred with Building Commissioner Everett. They went over the structure carefully and at 1:15 p. m. said that they felt certain that there were no more bodies in the ruins.

COSS CAMPAIGN ON CAPE OPENS

Two whirlwind tours today began the campaign for the re-election of Governor Foss. Accompanied by Chairman John F. McDonald of the Democratic State Committee, Governor Foss left Boston early today for a two-day tour of the Berkshires, while David I. Walsh of Fitchburg, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, headed other members on the Democratic ticket flown in an auto tour on the Cape.

Governor Foss, just after noon met an enthusiastic gathering of western Massachusetts at the Hotel Wendell in Pittsfield. Talking briefly to them, the Governor briefly reviewed his administration.

He also reviewed the great progressive measures passed, and declared that the credit was due to the people, as expressed last year in supplanting a Governor controlled by Lodge and bossed with Lodgism, with an administration that knows no masters but the people.

"We have kept our promises," the Governor declared "and we await the people's expression of confidence anew to continue in our efforts for the greater good of Massachusetts."

Starting in at Wareham, candidates on the State Democratic ticket spent a brief time upon the Cape during which thirty towns and hamlets will be visited.

The trip winds up Tuesday. Later on Governor Foss will address, as in past years, the hardy mariners of the Cape. Today three candidates on the Democratic State ticket accompanied the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

Frank J. Donahue, candidate for Secretary of State; Charles R. Sweeney, candidate for Auditor, and Augustus Thorndike, all aroused enthusiastic audiences as their auto whizzed along from Wareham through Cape hamlets.

Chairman McDonald in Pittsfield said:

"This year we are presenting for your support a list of candidates for the entire State ticket, which in my estimation stands out up by either party in recent years. In times gone by it has been the custom of the Democratic party to seek the most available man as its candidate for Governor. After doing that, it would then attempt to find men to take the nominations for the other positions on the ticket along geographical lines. Now on this ticket, not by the year the candidates in all years more than measure up to the standard of the opposition.

"Each candidate individually can more than handle his Republican contender. From every section of the State comes the most favorable reports, each seeking to put the ticket and both heads of the Legislature. We share very much this feeling as expressed to me, but at the same time we realize the importance of the amount of hard work that is necessary to bring about the result that will satisfy us all.

"It must be borne in mind continually that the Republican party, not only in

FIND KIDNAPED BOY IN LOWELL

Ferdinand Singhi of Philadelphia, son-in-law of Sigmund Lubin, the millionaire moving picture manufacturer, who kidnapped his three-year-old son a few weeks ago, is in Lowell with the boy, according to dispatches to-day from that city.

The Lubin millions have been poured out in a wholesale effort to find the missing son-in-law and grandchild. The distracted mother of the lad, formerly Miss Edith Southern Lubin, has been frantic with grief at the loss of her boy.

Ferdinand Singhi is a former resident of Lowell and of Boston. He will be remembered as the pianist at Keith's Theatre in this city in 1895 or 1896. He went to Keith's Philadelphia Theatre in 1901. The next year he went to Berlin to study music. At Oberammergau he met Miss Lubin, who was traveling abroad. The couple fell in love. Their engagement was announced in January, 1905. They were married soon after.

The match was considered quite a social achievement for Ferdinand Singhi, as he was dependent upon his playing for income. After the bride wore a prospective helpmeet Singhi is the son of Ferdinand G. Singhi, a barber, who has given up active work and now lives in Billerica with another of his sons. The marriage between the barber's son and the daughter of Sigmund Lubin attracted much attention.

Recently dissension arose in the Singhi household. Ferdinand Singhi disappeared five or six weeks ago. The boy disappeared, too.

A tremendous hue and cry was raised. Ferdie Singhi is in or about Lowell with the child, according to Lowell dispatches.

An intimate friend of the Singhi family in Lowell is Mrs. Louis Kibeki of No. 20 Hanks street. She is the aristocratic Belvidere section of the Spindle City. Mrs. Kibeki was asked if Mr. Singhi and the boy are in Lowell.

"We know where they are," said Mrs. Kibeki.

She would not admit that Singhi and the boy are in Lowell, but she did say:

"Mr. Singhi and the boy are safe and all right. Mr. Singhi has not an office right to the boy as his wife has. He left Philadelphia for good reasons. He is acting all right."

It is not considered strange in Lowell that Singhi should go there, because Lubin has a former home. He may be in Billerica at the Singhi home, but it was reported in Lowell no more likely that he is in the city at the home of influential friends.

Ferdinand Singhi is the son of Ferdinand G. Singhi, a native of Rockland, Me. In 1904 the elder Singhi gave up his Rockland barber shop and moved to Billerica, where one of his sons, F. A. D. Singhi, was located.

LYNN MEN SAVE ASTOR AND BRIDE

Two shoe manufacturers of Lynn, Fred Allen of the Allen, Foster & Willard Company, and George Gregory of the R. & G. Shoe Company, rescued Colonel John Jacob Astor and his bride, formerly Miss Madeleine Force of New York, in Bermuda. They were the guests of Mr. Bradley of a Boston drug manufacturing company, and were taking a motor boat trip around the island.

Some miles off the coast they saw a motor launch in distress and laboring badly among the waves. Heading toward the disabled craft those on board asked for assistance. The boat proved to be the launch of the yacht Noma, owned by Colonel Astor and on which he is now making his honeymoon.

The men from Lynn and their host got a line aboard the Astor launch and towed her to safety.

DYNAMITE PLOT IS FRUSTRATED AT LYNN

A plot to set off twelve sticks of dynamite in a clump of bushes near several dwelling houses was frustrated by the Lynn police to-day. Only for the prompt action of John W. Sheehan, a contractor who conducts a stone quarry and lodge on Stetson street, who reported to the police that the chest where the dynamite was stored had been broken into and ransacked, the police would not have found the dynamite in time. The explosion would have wrecked the houses.

PASTOR, TWICE WED, IGNORANT OF BIGAMY

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 9.—Following the arrest in Beecher, Ill., of the Rev. John Harlow, formerly of Bolton, Eng., on a charge of bigamy, the police announce that the pastor admits his second marriage, but pleads ignorance of the meaning of bigamy. Mr Harlow married Miss Amanda Brenker, a member of his Beecher congregation, in Chicago, Saturday. Information reached the police that a wife, Edith Jones Harlow, daughter of a British retired naval officer, and three children, were awaiting Harlow in England. The arrest followed.

HECKLERS CHASE FROTHINGHAM

NORTH ADAMS, Oct. 10.—Never once faltering on the trail, Miss Margaret Foley of Boston and her flying squadron of suffragists are right on the heels of Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Chairman Hatfield of the Republican State Committee and other candidates on the State ticket who are making a campaign of Berkshire County.

Unbeaten and determined, the Suffragists are keeping right up to the Republican campaigners and forcing them at every stopping point to listen to the question: "Where do you stand on the issue of women suffrage?"

Never before in the history of politics in Massachusetts has there been such a peculiar spectacle. In the very midst of what promised to be a triumphant tour of one of the most important counties of the State, a bodiest of Republicanism sent "stumpatistien" the Republican candidates for Governor and Secretary of State and the chairman of the State Committee have been compelled to flee before four women who are determined to make them declare where they stand.

To-day in Dalton, the home of Senator W. Murray Crane, who is the manager of the Republican campaign clubs year, Mr. Frothingham and his associates were interrupted by Miss Foley and her party. Her assistants are Miss Alice Carpenter, Miss Mary Gay and Miss Kate Parsons.

GENERAL LAWRENCE WILL IS ALLOWED

The will of General Samuel C. Lawrence of Medford, the longest document of the kind ever filed in Middlesex County, and covering sixty-three typewritten pages, was allowed to-day by Judge McIntyre in the Middlesex Probate Court. The value of the estate is set at $2,000,000, of which $800,000 is in real property.

Attorney Charles T. Gallagher of Boston appeared for the executors named in the will, Carrie R. Lawrence, William B. Lawrence and George L. Batchelder, all of Medford. Each of the executors filed a bond for $2,000,000. Under the will, which was made on July 9, 1900, $250,000 is left to charity or public purposes.

REJECTED MAN SHOT BY GIRL

Miss Tula Skalvuoros, a pretty young woman, who had been pursued by her persistent suitor, Charles Patrinos, to her boarding house at No. 48 Gorham street, Somerville, to-day, shot the young man in the face.

Patrinos was taken to the Somerville Hospital. The bullet failed to penetrate the skull, and the doctors said that he would recover. The young woman and her brother, Charles, who, it was said, furnished her the weapon with which the shooting was done, were taken to the police station.

Miss Skalvuoros said that the young man had a revolver in his hand and had threatened to shoot her unless she went away with him, when she fired at him. She feared that he would take her life and shot in self-defense, she said.

The tragedy was the result of an infatuation on the young man's part which failed to find a responsive chord in the girl's breast.

"That young man pestered the life out of the girl, almost," said one of her acquaintances. "He followed her on the street, insisted that she return his affection and threatened over and over again to kill her. The girl was not to blame at all."

Miss Skalvuoros, who is twenty-four years of age, is employed in Jamales Piano Parlors, worked in a Somerville laundry and taught in an evening school on Highland avenue. He was supposed to have been at the school last evening, but failed to appear.

The young woman started to work to-day, but not feeling well returned home. Patrinos, it seems, was on the lookout for her. He followed her home and into the house. By the time she got there and had gone to her room Patrinos was there, with the girl to her room.

The girl ordered him out. He refused and a struggle was made for the landing house where the girl and her brother Charles live said that Patrinos grabbed the girl.

"If you don't run away with me I'll kill you," the young man is said to have threatened.

"I don't love you and I don't want anything to do with you," replied the girl.

Then Patrinos pulled a revolver from his pocket, it was said, and brandished it. The girl, who is very strong, grabbed the young man's right hand. Moving over toward her bed she slipped her hand under a pillow and drew forth her revolver. In a flash she had fired. The young man staggered from the room and dropped.

GOLDBERGS ARE PLACED ON TRIAL

Judge John B. Ratigan, recently appointed to the superior court by Governor Foss, began his first important criminal trial today, when Joseph and Jacob Goldberg were placed on trial charged with breaking and entering.

The Goldbergs are said by the police to be members of a daring international band of criminals. They and two others were captured after an international chase of several days. Some of the band were arrested in Russia and others in Austria and extradited to this country.

The Goldbergs, with Harris Rothstein and Samuel Petowsky, were indicted here on charges of having broken into the jewelry store of Samuel E. Ullian, No. 1113 Washington street, on the night of February 22, 1910, and stealing goods valued at $15,000. Rothstein and Petowsky pleaded guilty in the lower court and it is expected they will testify for the government.

After the jury had been impanelled Attorney William E. Scharton for the defense moved to postpone the case because of a certain newspaper story of an explosion of chemicals in a room at police headquarters yesterday on the ground that the article which connected the defendants and the explosion might prejudice the jury against his clients. Judge Ratigan denied the motion.

Judge Ratigan at first denied a motion by Attorney Scharton that the jury go out to Ullian's store and view the scene of the alleged robbery. The assistant district attorney opposed this as unnecessary.

When Ullian was called as the first witness and started to describe the interior arrangement of his store as he recalled it on the night of the break Mr. Scharton rose to introduce in evidence a diagram of the place. Scharton objected and again moved that the jury visit the store. Judge Ratigan granted this motion and the jurymen were taken to the store.

PATROLMAN'S BODY IN RIVER

The body of Patrolman William H. Frost of the Brighton station, who has been missing since last Tuesday, was found floating in the water of the Charles River on the lower end of the speedway opposite the Metropolitan Driving Club house by Patrolman Richard Murphy of the Metropolitan Police at 11:30 a. m. to-day. The body had evidently been in the water some time.

Frost was twenty-nine years old, of good habits and bore an excellent reputation. He was married four weeks ago during his vacation and went to live with his wife at No. 80 Elton street, Brighton. When he left home he took with him his bankbooks and considerable money. These were found in the pockets of his clothing. The hands on his watch pointed to 9:20. He was reported missing by his wife a week ago to the police department.

ELMORE LOSES GLOVER SUIT

By a decree handed down to-day in the Middlesex Probate Court at East Cambridge, Attorney Samuel D. Elmore is refused $11,318.29 he asked to be allowed from the estate of Clarence F. Glover, the murdered Waltham laundryman, in addition to the $5,000 he already had been granted.

The decree is a victory for Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, the widow of the slain laundryman. When the hearing on Lawyer Elmore's petition was given in the Probate Court before Judge Charles E. McIntyre, about a month ago, Mrs. Glover appeared in opposition.

By the decree handed down by Judge McIntyre to-day, Mr. Elmore is ordered to pay over $1,005.50 to Attorney Fletcher Ranney for his services in trying the last Glover will case. He is ordered to pay $1,000 of the amount awarded him to pay for the expenses of the local trial of the contested will case before the Supreme Court.

Elmore asked in his petition that the special administrator of the Glover estate be ordered to pay him $11,389.29. With the payment of $2,005.50 out of the award he is left only $1,100.50 for his expenses and services in probating the will.

In closing his decree Judge McIntyre said:

"This decree does not prejudice the rights of the petitioner to appeal to the Supreme Court for his allowance."

Lawyers of the East Cambridge courthouse said it was understood among attorneys that Elmore would carry the case to the Supreme Court.

OH, MY! LISTEN TO MISS MARY

Mary Garden is back in America, with the full purpose, among other intentions, of wearing 'em.

Miss Mary will be in Boston in due time as she is scheduled to sing at the Boston Opera House. She may wear 'em in Boston.

Yes, the reader guessed right the very first time. One can't keep the truth at the bottom of a well, any more than one can keep a squirrel on the ground. One might as well come right out and say that Miss Mary purposes in America to appear in pants, or trousers, whichever word is most favored in our set.

Mary Garden landed in the United States of America, via Hoboken, and the gang-plank of the North German Lloyd liner George Washington. The ship news reporters flocked toward her and learned right off the bat some of the singer's plans to display herself in trousers. A callow reporter asked a fatal question.

Oh! Only on the Stage.

"Certainly not—not on Broadway or about town. Why, I'm surprised at you reporters. I am going to wear trousers when I play Prince Charming in Massenet's "Cinderella."

Miss Mary is feeling as chipper as can be and has repartee to spare. She will open her season at Philadelphia in "Carmen."

"Have you been to Spain to get the atmosphere of "Carmen?" she was asked.

Miss Mary flashed back: "Certainly not. Why, should I go to Spain to get the atmosphere of 'Carmen'? I didn't have to go to Babylon to learn how to sing Delilah."

She was asked if she had gained or lost weight. She threw back her form, displaying a figure slim but not slender.

"I have lost weight abroad," declared she emphatically, in response to some doubtful looks.

"You are not engaged?"

This was asked because every now and then someone making a noise like a press agent, circulates a story of her betrothal to Count This or Baron That.

"I am not," she said. "Besides, I wouldn't marry any man. They are all so uninteresting and all alike. As for the money goes, I make all I want. I spend a lot, too, even if I was born in Scotland."

She said she would put up in New York at the Ritz-Carlton.

"You can smoke there," she was reminded.

"I don't care if I can. I don't want to smoke. It never add to a woman's beauty. I believe that, when women do smoke, it's just a fad with them."

Someone cautiously asked if she ran across Oscar Hammerstein on the other side. This reference to her temperamental enemy never ruffled Miss Mary. She smiled.

"No, I didn't happen to. Poor old dear. He praised me like a dog, but I still have a tender feeling for him. He is the greatest impresario that ever lived. I fear, however, he has very little chance in London. They really care out little for grand opera there. They give two months a year to it at Covent Garden, and that is more for the social side than anything else."

Alas! Poor Oscar!

The reporters wondered what Oscar would speculate if he heard Mary allude to him as "Poor old dear."

Miss Garden has "discovered" a future singing wonder. Her name is Blanche Slocum, the daughter of a Chicago drummer. She found Miss Slocum in the chorus of the Philadelphia Opera Company and decided that the Slocum voice is a "revelation." She took the Chicago girl under her wing and put her under her own teacher, Trabadelo, to have her voice cultivated more.

"In two years," said Miss Mary, "you will hear the finest dramatic soprano ever."

B. J. ROTHWELL IS ENGAGED

Bernard J. Rothwell, former president of the Chamber of Commerce and a leader in the civic and business development of Boston, admitted to-day that he is to take for his bride Miss Hendletta I. Goodrich, executive secretary of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union.

Mr. Rothwell and Miss Goodrich have been engaged for some time, but no public announcement has been made. Miss Goodrich has been in Europe for the last two months with her mother. She is expected to return in about a month and the marriage will take place soon after her arrival. The ceremony will take place in Needham, where Mr. Rothwell has fitted up a handsome home.

Mr. Rothwell received smilingly scores of congratulations to-day from friends and business associates, as he went his daily digs at his being able to keep his engagement a secret for so long. Miss Fay and his intended bride is 28. She is a college woman, having received the degree of bachelor of arts from the University of Michigan and the degree of bachelor of science from the University of Chicago, where she took a special course. Miss Goodrich is one of the foremost sociological workers of Boston and has been especially active in the work of the union. She has aided in many reforms applying to women and children.

Mr. Rothwell has for years been interested and active in the business development of Boston. As president of the Chamber of Commerce he was instrumental in promoting greatly the efficiency of the organization.

The Bay State Milling Company of which he is the head has large plants in Ohio and Indiana and he also carries on a large grain exporting business.

He has been active in the "Boston 1915" movement and is known for his quiet but effective philanthropy. He is a widower and has one son eighteen years old. Mr. Rothwell is a member of the Boston City Club and Boston Athletic Association.

A Home Recipe For Wrinkled, Saggy Skin

(From Beauty and Health.)

The famous saxolite lotion which is recommended by beauty specialists for the removal of wrinkles and for reducing distended pores, can be made at home. Ask your druggist for saxolite in powdered form, 1 oz., and ½ pint witch hazel. Dissolve the powder in the witch hazel and bathe the face, neck and hands in the solution. Results are remarkable, and instantaneous. The skin tightens, and this naturally reduces the wrinkles, as well as creases or folds about the neck, cheeks or hands. The tissue and muscle beneath the skin also become firmer and more solid.

One feels much refreshed and exhilarated after using this truly wonderful preparation. Its continued use for only a short time will make one look five or ten years younger.

GASOLENE ECONOMY

The low consumption of fuel in the 1912 Locomobile "Six" is an illuminating index of its mechanical superiority over other cars. Many of our customers are operating this car 12 miles per gallon—it frequently has been operated 14 miles per gallon, and even as high as 16 miles per gallon.

This in itself is a strong feature, but in its broad sense it means the closest approximation to Ultimate Perfection yet achieved. It indicates not only Locomobile superiority in motor design, construction and power transmission efficiency, but the most perfect co-ordination of these basic essentials.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—John R. Walsh, the former Chicago banker and railroad builder, was to-day granted a parole. He will be released from Leavenworth, the Federal prison in Kansas, where he was sentenced in 1909 to serve five years following his conviction in Chicago. Walsh's case, in many respects, is similar to that of Charles W. Morse, the New York banker, serving a term in the Federal prison at Atlanta. Morse recently gave up his fight for a pardon.

Lining Silks

A Readjustment of the Prices on Lining Silks

A Decrease in Prices Throughout the Department

Stocks Doubled and Tripled

Lining Silks are staple silks—in fact the MOST STAPLE of all yard goods carried in a store. They are not expensive to handle, they are in constant demand, and consequently they can be sold at a small profit.

Lining Silks should be of good quality as they form the foundation on which other materials are built. For instance.

The Lining Silk in a chiffon dress takes all the wear.

The Lining Silk in a coat or suit takes a great portion of the wear.

Whenever Lining Silks are used they are subjected to the hardest wear.

Therefore Lining Silks should be of good quality.

The best qualities only are carried by Chandler & Co.

Note Well the Lowest Prices Ever Quoted on Lining Silks

A MAGNIFICENT ONE-YARD WIDE SATIN MESSALINE—At the price the quality is unmatchable—every yard of the silk has been tested and compared and is the BEST in the market. It contains the almost incalculable number of 7200 warp threads to the yard across the goods, with a total of warp and woof of 14,400 threads of pure silk one yard long to each square yard. Many stores would sell this quality for 1.25—Chandler & Co.'s standard 1.00 quality. Readjustment price..... 85c

There are over fifty shades in the above, including ivory, cream, black and white

TWENTY-INCH WIDE PEAU DE CYGNE—also used for waists to match up with the new fall dress goods; Chandler & Co.'s standard 1.00 quality. Readjustment price..... 85c

NINETEEN-INCH MESSALINE—Chandler & Co.'s standard 75c quality. Readjustment price..... 60c

NINETEEN-INCH TAFFETA SILK—Chandler & Co.'s standard quality, famous for the past twenty years. Over sixty shades. Always 79c. Readjustment price..... 60c

Forty-Inch Wide All-Silk Lining

For Lining Coats and Suits

The most celebrated of all silk linings in the world—known to every dressmaker and ladies' tailor throughout the country—the maker's name in gilt letters on every piece—owing to the extremely low price at which this lining will be sold, Chandler & Co. refrain from using the name. Former price 1.50 the yard. Readjustment price.. 1.20

The above lining has the reputation of outwearing the garment which it lines.

MODEL STENOGRAPHER IS SILENT

And Doesn't Flirt, Says Miss Florence O'Hara, Well-Known Member of Craft in Boston.

By SYBIL WARNE.

Women, women stenographers!

You must not flirt in the office.

You must not wear diamonds or brilliant jewelry.

Be silent.

These are the few pertinent suggestions which Miss J. Florence O'Hara, one of the best known women stenographers in Boston, makes. She has had a long, practical experience in office work.

In addition to this, Miss O'Hara advises constant accuracy as one of the essentials in the success of this calling. A stenographer will often be called to correct the English of a busy employer, and she should know how to do this, and when to write a letter that is too severe in tone, to modify it.

She must always be dignified and broad-minded and not make her office a recruiting place for disappointed lovers.

She urges every stenographer to study the best interests of her employer, so that when he is away from the office she may be able to hold the business together until he returns.

She thinks that many an office in this city would go to pieces were it not for the careful oversight of the stenographers who are safeguarding the business of their employers.

MISS FLORENCE O'HARA

Miss J. Florence O'Hara, one of the best-known stenographers in Boston.

Social position should be more readily granted to these young women, and they should not be frowned upon simply because they are working daily at a typewriter.

"What will make a good all-around woman stenographer," she was asked.

"I will tell you what makes a young woman a successful stenographer," replied Miss O'Hara.

"She must keep her eyes and her ears shut to all that is going on in the office, where she is employed.

"This is most important. To be able to keep silence is one of the most essential qualities in her make-up. By this I mean there is always something occurring in an office to upset the stenographer and you must get hardened to it. If you are on the outlook to see and hear all that is going on in the office you will get into trouble.

"Don't come to the office to low neck shirt waists or wearing diamonds and hope to win in this way. Dress neatly and compactly. Dress for the office and get yourself well put together. A young woman can be neat without much expense, but any leaning towards showiness is to be deplored and will be talked about.

Warns Against Flirting.

"When will some women learn to be attractive by being neat. If you have diamonds to wear get them into the safe as soon as you arrive at the office.

"To my mind, nothing is more disgusting a machine with their fingers sparkling with so called brilliants in very poor taste and interferes with her usefulness.

"Don't flirt in the office.

"Make it a point to understand the machine you are using. This will keep the mind off of many outside attractions.

"But would you not approve of a stenographer being ordinarily social with others at the office," Mrs. O'Hara was asked.

"Within a certain limit but only this, and then I would like to know the young woman pretty well," she replied. "As a rule it is this way. Some people make a practice of calling at offices, not to do business but to see the stenographer. If the girl is particularly attractive, the office may be full of admirers, and business will be a second thought.

"A stenographer must be a business man in every particular. She should know the 'ins and outs' of the business and be able to run it when her employer is away or be able to talk intelligently about it to a customer, but a girl that is constantly filling the office with admirers when her employer is away, instead of giving her whole time to her duties, is of no great help to her employer or anybody else.

Those Giddy Stenographers.

"A stenographer is more than a writer of letters or one who is running a machine. She is part of the business and should be able to help an employer in effective ways during his absence from the city.

"These giddy stenographers are not faithful to their employers.

"Then a stenographer should be accurate. She should know how to edit a letter after it is given her. Many employers murder the English language in their dictation. They get a verb all related up in a sentence so that you cannot find the noun of the sentence. There are many business men in this city who need to take a good many lessons in English. They often blame their stenographers for mistakes that they make. It is necessary that the future stenographer should pay heed to correct English.

"She should be constantly faithful and loyal to her employer and above everything protect his interests.

"She should not be studying the clock waiting for the hour to come to go out for her luncheon or for the time to come to leave for the day.

Superfluous Hair

is now an unnecessary misfortune. ERADICO removes it with perfect results.

We make no claims for ERADICO that we do not guarantee. There are other so-called hair removers, pastes and powders, which cannot be classified, and therefore cannot be absorbed by the skin, and consequently never reach the roots of the hair. ERADICO is a liquid, and really ends the growth of hair. It removes superfluous hair within two minutes after application.

No matter what your experience may have been, use ERADICO and you won't be disappointed.

ERADICO is a blessing to many women. Society women can no longer be bothered. ERADICO completely eliminates superfluous hair on the arms and neck.

You can get ERADICO by Parcels Post or Express from Jordan Marsh Company, Houghton & Dutton, and other department stores and drug stores. We warn you against attempts to substitute. See that you get ERADICO, the liquid depilatory, in the yellow package.

Honest Statement of Well Known Citizen

An advertisement of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which I saw in the St. Albans Messenger some time ago, induced me to give your remedy a fair trial. I was then suffering from terrible pains in the small of my back. The pain was usually greatest during the morning, and often when I attempted to arise from my bed to go to work, I found I could not do so without the assistance of some member of my family. I am very grateful for the good your great remedy has done for me.

I thought I would have to use much more Swamp-Root than I did, in order to get well, but am absolutely cured of my kidney trouble and now without the slightest pain, after using only seven bottles. Was cured about six months ago, and though I do heavy work in the shop where I have been employed for the past forty-four years, have had no recurrence of the trouble or pain in the slightest degree.

I am doubly thankful for this, and while now an old man, I again feel the strength of my youth, thanks to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Many others also use it to a good advantage as I have.

Very truly yours,

DEMOCRATS OPEN CAMPAIGN ON CAPE

Massachusetts, but from the national headquarters, is keenly awake to the necessity of trying to keep Massachusetts in the Republican column.

Loss Will Be Permanent.

"They know that if they lose Massachusetts this year that they will never be able to control it again, so long as the Democrats reside in an organized condition. It is their purpose to send their national talent here, as well as the financial support of the interests that control their party, both here and in the national capital. You have had an opportunity in the last few days to see to a small way what these interests might accomplish.

"They own, or control, almost wholly the important newspapers of this State, and the news is circulated in a manner calculated to do the greatest possible injury to the Democratic cause. These are things that the Democratic party have had to contend with in previous administrations, and they will be even more active this year in attempting to discredit the splendid administration given to the Commonwealth by our present Governor, Eugene N. Foss.

"We want you to be prepared for anything that might be published by them. Attempts will be made from time to time to create the impression that the Democratic party is in a state of disorganization and disruption. Our party was never better organized and the candidates will continue to work in harmony regardless of the misrepresentations of the Republican press.

"The Democratic State Committee has made a special effort this year to bring to the attention of the workers of the State the importance of carrying on the work of registration and naturalization. During the course of the year a great many names have been dropped from the voting list, and in most cases they have been Democratic, and if we desire to endorse the splendid administration of Governor Foss, it is necessary for us to have these names placed on the list again, in addition to obtaining many new names likewise.

Plea for Hearty Support.

"We wish to exhort you to make every effort possible to insure the return of Governor Foss, as well as making possible the election of the entire State ticket and a Democratic House of Representatives and Senate; to support the Governor in his efforts to have enacted progressive and humane legislation, such as he has been advocating since he was inducted into office last January.

"Franklin County has over 3,000 persons who are assessed for a poll tax but whose names are not upon the voting list. Hampshire County has nearly 4,000. Hampden County has 27,000. A great many of these could be obtained by having the city and town committees take the voting lists and their lists of assessed polls and striking off the names of the registered voters. They could then ascertain if those left would be Democrats, if registered, and a postal card sent to them instructing them as to where and when they could be registered, would add many new Democratic names on the voting list.

"If this work is carried on from now until the time of registration, which I might add will be October 18 in the cities and October 28 in the towns, enough names could be added to make Massachusetts safely Democratic and wrest for all time the control of this State, which now reposes in the Republican party, the genius of the money power."

On the Cape Democratic Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh said:

"The attempt on the part of the Republican party to make the predominating issue in this campaign the tariff question, can be construed in no other manner than an admission on its part that the administration of Governor Foss, and the conduct of the Democratic party in the Massachusetts legislature are not open to any just criticism. The voters are not going to be led into the belief that the vote of Massachusetts for State officers will affect Canada the tariff issue. How is it possible for any change to be made in the tariff law of this country before March, 1913, without the approval of President Taft and a Republican Senate?

"Why then all this talk about the tariff? Why these threats about the injury the election of a Democratic Governor to Massachusetts industries when the absolute control of every national question affecting our industries will be in the keeping of the Republican party for sixteen months after this election?

"The only explanation is that the Republican party, solely for the purpose of electing its candidate for Governor, and realizing that there is no State issue advanced in their platform that can reasonably convince the voters that a change of administration is desired on Beacon Hill, is determined to win this election, not by arguments, nor by an appeal to the conscience or patriotism of the electorate of Massachusetts, but by threats of poverty, panic and industrial ruin.

Party Threats of Strike.

"The Republican party is appealing for political purposes to the interests to go on a strike"—the very action and conduct they complain of on the part of disconcerted laborers. The threatened industrial lockout in Massachusetts is not to be one of labor rebelling against the demands and exactions of their employers, but is a political strike on the part of the interests for the purpose of making labor bear the ballot through fearful and hungry eyes.

"With practically no question to be determined by the voters of the Commonwealth except the selection of candidates to fill purely State offices, the Republican party is driven to the desperate position of calling out its beneficiaries—the protected interests—to strike. When the electorate of Massachusetts, composed of intelligent and patriotic men, realize as they are realizing, the kind of campaign the Republican party is waging there will be, in my judgment, a lasting rebuke to this method of campaigning.

"The manufacturing interests of this Commonwealth need not fear the Democratic party. Like all patriotic citizens we are interested in them and their success. We are opposed only to those interests who have grown rich and powerful while operating behind a high tariff wall, which has enabled them to practice extortion upon the public. Every honest interest will find no more loyal defender than our party. We are seeking only to keep the door of opportunity open so that men everywhere may be free from unnecessary burdens in the form of taxes exacted for the benefit of the few. We believe that a free, commercial and industrial people are the best capital that a country can possess, rather than a few powerful trusts fostered and developed by private legislation.

Money for Republicans.

"It is the illegitimate connection that exists between business and legislation that our party opposes. The business interests that are opposed to us owe them favored interests who are fearful lest the law be changed so as to deprive them of the profit and spoils that they have been taking for years through legislation. This is why they are supplying the Republican campaign with money. In turn we accuse the Republican party of selling the legislation and promising the protection and assistance of public officials in matters of legislation.

"The people must break up this alliance between the business interests and legislation. The only effective way to do it, however, is in the next succeeding presidential election, and not in the State election of this year.

"The paramount issue in this campaign is whether or not Massachusetts will stand for progressive legislation in State affairs. Last year the people spoke decisively in favor of a change of policy in this Commonwealth. All over the country the same sentiment was manifested at the election returns. Was it all a mistake? Does Massachusetts desire to overthrow the verdict of last year in favor of the progressive policies of government that the Democratic party, and a large element in the Republican party, have been advocating throughout the country?

"This is the real underlying issue of this campaign. The country is asking, where does Massachusetts stand? Is she going to rescind her action of last year by returning to power the element in the Republican party which is opposed to every progressive measure advocated in the country to-day. To do so can mean nothing less than that Massachusetts has taken a step backward."

Mr. Donahue, candidate for Secretary of State, said:

"The senior Senator from Massachusetts and the Republican candidates for Lieutenant-Governor, have come out in the open against that plank in the Democratic platform which demands the abolition of party enrollment as a pre-requisite for voting at primaries. By their open endorsement of the proposition that voting in primaries and the power to sign nomination papers shall be confined to those who are willing to submit themselves to political vaccination they have made a party issue of a vital matter upon which their party platform was eloquently silent.

"Senator Lodge at the Minihan campaign dinner on Tuesday night characterized this demand as 'one of the most foolish and dangerous planks in the Democratic platform.' Wherein lies the danger, Senator Lodge, except to political machines whose existence would be threatened by a free participation of voters in the primaries? What is there foolish about a demand that the right to nominate candidates be restored to 600,000 voters?

"That is the number of registered voters in this Commonwealth who did not participate in the primaries this year and who are thus precluded, under the provisions of the present primary act, from signing nomination papers for candidates next year. In his attitude on this matter Senator Lodge and Senator Lodge in his familiar role of contempt for the voters of the State puts principles above parties and partisanship.

Let Mr. Luce Explain.

"Mr. Luce says that it was 'absurd' for the Democrats to put this in their platform. Inasmuch as this plank was inserted at my instance, I would like Mr. Luce to explain wherein is the 'absurdity' in demanding that voting at the primaries, the act of the people, shall be surrounded by secrecy and that the voter shall be free to determine for himself the right in choosing between parties at the primaries as he enjoys in choosing between candidates at the polls.

"Mr. Luce himself furnishes an unanswerable argument for the open primary with a party-column ballot, when he says: 'The open primary helps to bring a greater participation in the nominating process. Tradesmen, clerks, employes of all sorts, and many professional men, who fear loss by the usefulness or profit if they take active in politics, are kept away by the close primary.'

"I ask you, Mr. Luce, as an exponent of fairness and purity in politics, if there is anything fair in a law that keeps these men away from the primaries?

"But Mr. Luce says he is inclined to believe that the gains which would come through an open primary and the participation of all these voters in the voter therein is more than offset by the losses. And what loss would come from an open primary? The loss of party responsibility, says Mr. Luce.

"With the vastly increased number who, according to Mr. Luce's admission, would participate in the nominating process in an open primary were had, he still believes that the interests would be able to control Republican nominations and vice versa. Truly Mr. Luce has surprisingly little faith in the citizenship of this commonwealth to set up such an argument against free participation of the voters in the primaries and the exercise of their franchise free from the domination of employers and political bosses."

SUNDAY AMERICAN THANKED FOR EXPOSING MILL SLAVERY

The following resolutions have been passed by Lowell Local 85, International Molders' Union, commending the Sunday AMERICAN for its expose of the conditions of employment of women in Massachusetts foundries:

Whereas, The employment of women and girls in foundries is brutally un-American, and

Whereas, The factory inspection department of our State police apparently knew nothing about the employment of women and girls in the foundries of the Commonwealth until the horrible practice was exposed by the press of the city of Boston, therefore be it

Resolved, That every candidate for office in the coming State election in the Lowell districts be required to give a specific answer to the following question:

Will you promise, if elected, to work and vote for a law prohibiting the employment of women and girls in core rooms and foundries, and a law to create a department of labor for the enforcement of all labor laws, and be it further

Resolved, That we, the members of International Molders' Union, Local 85, of Lowell, Mass., in meeting assembled, commend the Sunday AMERICAN on the stand it has taken in exposing to the citizens of Massachusetts the employment of women and girls in foundries and core rooms, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy be sent to the Sunday AMERICAN and a copy submitted to the Trades and Labor Council of Lowell, Mass., requesting similar action on same.

AFTER LEADERS ON FOUNDRY LAW

Organized labor is dissatisfied with the evasive way in which the Republicans treat their demand for a law to prohibit the employment of women in foundry core rooms, and a measure for the creation of a department of labor.

The discontent is not confined to Boston. It is statewide, and has been officially noticed by the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor.

In some instances it is charged that the slurring manner in which the Republicans have ignored the demands of organized labor in this respect is only another way of belittling the trade union movement.

That the labor organizations of the state do not intend to allow their fight for the women slaves of the core rooms to be sidetracked without a contest is shown by the action of the federation, which has instructed Martin T. Joyce, its secretary-treasurer, to draft a question for submission to all candidates for public offices previous to election day.

Labor Prepares Question.

Secretary Joyce to-day declared that this question would be drawn up during the next four days and submitted to a special meeting of the federation executive committee at Wells Memorial Building next week, immediately following its approval by that committee, he said, the question would be put to every candidate for the Legislature and Senate by the various central labor unions in the Commonwealth.

Secretary Foss, Mr. Frothingham, and all other candidates on the State ticket of the Democratic political parties be asserted, undoubtedly would be looked after by the executive committee of the federation itself. This results from the fact that the federation has jurisdiction over all labor questions of State-wide interest.

Secretary Joyce refused to point out the exact question to be drafted by him until it first is submitted to the executive committee of the Federation for approval. He did admit, however, that for all practical purposes it would be a repetition of the question drawn up and approved of by the big Faneuil Hall Industrial meeting.

Democrats for Facts.

It is confidently predicted by all conversant with the situation that the reply received from the candidates to the new question is submitted to him, will be a straightforward one, and that it will be dictated by the outspoken way in which the Democrats met the issue in their platform, saying:

"A commission is now making inquiry into minimum wages for women and minors. We request this commission to report fully upon the employment of women and children, in heavy labor, with recommendations for the cure of any abuse."

In still another plank in their platform, which Governor Foss has publicly said meets with his unqualified approval, the Democrats declare:

"The law for the protection of employes are imperfectly enforced, and the operations of the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration have been unsatisfactory. We recommend that all these functions be reorganized under the jurisdiction of one board, as a department of labor."

In direct contrast with this plain, understandable language, the Republicans only incorporate eleven words in their platform that even by inference can be held to deal with the great labor issues of the day, namely:

"We purpose protecting the toiler from the dangers of modern industry."

The palpable evasion, it is declared with emphasis by every labor man questioned by the AMERICAN, will not be tolerated for an instant by the trade unionists of the State, although they say they will withhold official censure of Frothingham until he is given a chance to reply to the question to be submitted to him by their federation committee.

It was organized labor, they point out, that was largely responsible for the defeat of ex-Governor Draper, for his refusal to sign their eight-hour bill.

PROPER WAY TO SHAMPOO

In an address before a large audience of beauty seekers to-day, Mae Martyn, the famed authority on such matters, said:

"Common sense teaches us that the hair and scalp cannot be thoroughly cleansed of dirt, excess oil and dandruff without using water. And yet it is a common mistake that most women make in using soap in any form for shampooing. The woman who shampoos with soap soon notices her hair losing its gloss, splitting at the ends, becoming brittle and thin.

"These troubles can easily and best be avoided by using as a shampoo, one teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. The hair will rinse easily, dry quickly without streaking, and becomes brighter and fluffier. Many hairdressers have adopted this shampoo with excellent results. It seems to possess every quality of a perfect shampoo."—Denver Call.

NOT SALTS, OIL OR PILLS BUT CASCARETS

No Odds How Sick Your Stomach; How Hard Your Head Aches or How Bilious—Cascarets Make You Feel Great.

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

M'NAMARA COUNSEL OUTLINES DEFENCE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 10.—All doubt as to the defence to be offered by John J. and James J. McNamara, the brothers under indictment for murder in connection with the explosion that wrecked the Los Angeles Times on October 1, 1910, was dispelled today when it became known that counsel for the labor men have secured unique evidence tending to prove that gas and fire, and not dynamite, destroyed the newspaper plant.

Spectators at the trial will see a miniature newspaper plant, complete to the most minute detail. This structure, an exact model of the Times building, with one side cut away to show the printing presses, linotype machines, desks and all the equipment of a great newspaper plant.

By this model the defence believes it will be able to demonstrate to the jury that what caused the explosion in the Times building. The model will be used to show the effects of the explosions in accordance with the theory of the defence.

Out beyond the hills of the north of the city the defence has been conducting a series of explosive experiments in secret. Heated discharges of gas and dynamite have plowed up the earth so that any difference in the action of the explosives might be shown.

A State election prevents a court session today, but the case will be resumed tomorrow, when some of the members of the jury may be selected.

Of the 125 men named in the first venire of the prospective veniremen, 122 responded to a call for preliminary examination, and at the close of court Judge Bordwell had weeded this number down to forty-five, who were instructed to return to-morrow.

Counsel for both sides agreed that this short cut saved days of arduous work. One of the three men who failed to report is dead, another is in Europe and the third is out of the country.

All veniremen were excused who were able to show their business would suffer if they became jurors in a trial of long duration.

It is not known which of the brothers will be the first tried, but it is said that the defence will be the same for each—that the Times building was destroyed by gas and fire and not by dynamite and fire.

Taxpayers Only for Jury.

The jury list, under the California system, is made up by the judges of the Superior Court from the tax list. Any man liable for jury duty must, therefore, be a taxpayer. Clarence Darrow, senior counsel for the defence, believes this restriction of the talesmen to the ranks of taxpayers is a heavy handicap with which to start.

The system, he said, tended to force the defence to accept a jury of men who, however honest and sincere, live in an environment which will not inspire natural sympathy or representatives of union labor. He proposes to urge upon the court the justice of disqualifying any one associated with the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association or any other commercial body that has taken stand antagonistic to the McNamaras.

Wage earners who might be sympathetic toward the McNamaras are precluded from service, and therefore those representing the opposed sentiment should not be permitted to sit in judgment upon the merits of an issue over which the feeling is running so high, argues Mr. Darrow.

Union men have been pouring into the city for several months endeavoring to unionize the various trades, and at the present time there is a large body of men with union cards here. Leaders of several trades have been drifting to the city for two weeks, ostensibly to be on the ground for the trial.

McNamaras' Life Stories.

Sitting in a corridor just outside his cell in the county jail, John J. McNamara briefly sketched what he termed the uneventful story of himself and his brother, James B. McNamara.

"The last building I worked on was the Rockefeller structure in Cleveland. I left that job to go to Toronto, and it was held open for me if I wanted to go back, but I didn't, as I had been made secretary-treasurer and had my time fully taken up with the duties of that office.

Took Course in College.

"I never planned my life far ahead. The work of an ironworker probably precludes such planning, for what a man does not know when he leaves home in the morning that he will return at night. It probably tends toward fatalism.

"I wanted to learn of an organization in which I held office, particularly the books, and to that end I attended the Indianapolis College of Law and was admitted to practice in 1889.

"There is little else about my life except my arrest. I am an inveterate reader, and always have been, of books treating with economics and industrial matters."

James B. McNamara, who was quietly by while his brother talked, also was born in Cincinnati, his birthday was June 2, 1882. He attended the common schools and then learned the printer's trade, which he has followed almost continuously ever since, working in job offices in Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other cities.

"Outside me," said John J. McNamara, "my brother has never been especially active in trades union affairs."

Of living rises higher day by day.
The country's getting warmer and, the less of snow and ice
The more we have of grain and clothes we have to pay.

The more we have of comfort in a semi-tropic heat,
The more for costly splendor we will yearn,
The prices will go climbing till enough to wear and eat
Will cost us something more than we can earn.

He isn't very cheerful, in this geologic guy,
Although he says our weather's on the mend.
He finds this same condition will make living come so high
We'll all be nearer starving in the end.

Miss Susie Shannon of Bridgewater was elected president. LAST ORDER FOR COLUMBUS DAY

Lieutenant-Colonel Dunn, chief marshal of the Columbus Day parade, has issued the following order for the final marshalling of the Columbus Day parade:

1.—The Columbus Day parade will start promptly at 2 o'clock in march upon the route published in General Order No. 3, dated October 4, 1911.

2.—The parade will be reviewed by His Excellency, Eugene N. Foss, governor of Massachusetts, at the State House, by His Grace, Most Reverend William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, on the Common opposite West street, by His Honor, John F. Fitzgerald, mayor of Boston, on Tremont, Boylston and Beacon streets, and by Chief Marshal, Lieutenant-Colonel John M. Dunn, on Park square.

3.—The units of all civic organizations will be numbered in succession, and will be marshalled outside the reviewing officer, and by counting from the head.

4.—The chief quartermaster will make arrangements for the parade to halt at the Public Garden at least once, and for the drinking fountains to be turned on at that point, so that the horses are watered before the parade is dismissed.

5.—Division marshals upon the arrival at the place assigned their divisions at the starting point, No. 5, will report their arrival to the Chief of Staff.

6.—Division marshals will receive their orders governing from these headquarters, and will be armed by leaving ten paces to the left of their regiments.

7.—The distance between divisions will be twenty paces and division commanders will see to it that this distance is preserved at all times.

8.—Organizations not in position in time to march at the head of their division will march in line in front of the side representing the Chief Marshal at that point.

9.—Boylston, Dartmouth, Tremont and Huntington avenue are recommended as most convenient for dismissing organizations after the parade.

10.—Division marshals will continue in service in columns of companies and will not be relieved until the parade is dismissed by the reviewing officer, and will report to the Chief of Staff at Grand Army headquarters, 441 Boylston street going south.

11.—Division marshals will see that the assignment of assembly and after dismissal will avoid interference with the movement of the parade. It will be necessary that the people who wish to witness the parade shall be able to find seats in order to enable them to return to their homes without inconvenience.

Paragraph 12, order 4 was corrected and amended by the Chief Surgeon. These have been published.

13.—Headquarters of Chief Marshal will be established at the corner of Boylston and Tremont street and Commonwealth avenue. Flags will remain at half mast. By order of

Lillian Russell's Warning. Sore Feet: Bad Health

Lillian Russell is a physical marvel. Now in her fifties years, but having preserved all the fresh beauty of youth. In the Chicago Tribune she says: "Care of the feet (the hardest worked members of the body) is absolutely essential to health. Constant irritation from sore feet often causes serious nervous disorders, and nothing brings wrinkles to the face more certainly. Tiz is the best treatment known to science for all foot ailments. It works through the pores and removes the cause. Dissolve a few tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of hot water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently massaging the sore parts." The effect is almost magical. All soreness disappears instantly. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives instant relief to tired, burning feet, and prevents chilblains and frost-bites. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Only twenty-five cent box usually cures the worst foot. Calocide is not a patent medicine. Don't waste money on uncertain remedies. Insist on getting what you want from the druggist.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 100,000 more than the next highest cent competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

Face Peeling Easy — Blonde or Brunette

"The blonde's complexion fades early, because her skin is extraordinarily thin and fine," says Mme. Lina Cavalieri, perhaps the most famous living beauty. "The brunette's, as a rule, is the reverse. The skin is thicker and has a tendency to an oily appearance."

For either the faded blonde's skin or the brunette's oily or sallow complexion, the best remedy is ordinary mercolized wax. Used daily, this will give one an entirely new complexion within about a week's time. The wax gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin, with all its defects, a little each day, without affecting the delicate underskin in the least. The latter will have the exquisitely beautiful glow of youth—indeed, one may readily lose ten or fifteen years from her age, so far as appearance goes, by a course of this simple treatment. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is applied like cold cream.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

THOUSANDS TO SEE AMERICAN'S GREAT MOTOR BOAT PARADE

Thousands of persons from out of town will witness the great Water Carnival and Motor Boat Parade to be held in the Charles River Basin on Columbus Night, in addition to the record-breaking attendance that is confidently assured from the cities and towns of Greater Boston. Indications are that the basin will be thronged as never before by those who are enthusiastic over witnessing the beautiful spectacle that will bring the day's observances to a close.

Fine weather for the big event is certain, according to the experts. This is all that is needed to make a great success of the event. Three bands have been engaged to play during the evening, and this feature will add greatly to the pleasure of the thousands who will attend.

The Carnival Manager will be at the office of the AMERICAN until 9 o'clock tonight to meet entrants and discuss any point in connection with the carnival they may bring up. Entrants should watch the AMERICAN for further details of the event.

Instructions to the entrants will be sent to them at their mailing addresses. The following directions for motor boats entered have been decided upon.

Directions for Entrants.

Report for formation at 7:30. Division number and position in division will be announced in later circular and also in the AMERICAN.

Head of parade will start in upper Charles Basin near Cottage Farms Bridge.

Route—A circuit of basin, passing under Harvard and West Boston bridges through arches indicated by green lights.

Boats are expected to run under their own power, being connected by pipes at a uniform distance of fifteen feet from other boats in each division.

Each entry will bring a towing float of at least fifteen feet. Cleats must be well fastened fore and aft. Each boat must have a pail of sand or other fire extinguisher.

All boats must be fully manned; but see care not to carry more passengers than can be easily accommodated.

Must Display Numbers.

Numbers will be furnished by Chief Marshal's staff. They must be displayed on both sides of contestants.

Title will be high on October 12 at 2:16 p. m. Boats coming from Boston Harbor can pass under the railroad bridges after 6 p. m. and, leaving the boats, will find plenty of room until after midnight. The railroad bridges will be opened if necessary.

Arrangements have been made to facilitate passage through the locks in the dam. The police will make a special point of this.

Draw of the Harvard Bridge will not be opened, and allowance must be made for a clearance of little more than ten feet.

In case of rain the Carnival will be postponed until the first clear night.

The prizes, which have been offered, are on display at Kennedy's, Nos. 30 and 32 Summer street. Three additional prizes have been offered in the cases for the boats coming the longest distance. These are nickle, brass and enamel Tyrone Extra guisbers, which are donated by the Tyrone Company of New England.

Owners of motor boats need have no fear that there will be delay in getting through the locks into the basin. The Commission will do everything to facilitate the passage of boats. The locks will accommodate twenty boats at a time and can be filled and emptied in three minutes.

Staff of Judges.

The following gentlemen have consented to act as judges of the motor parade:

Chairman, W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Register of Deeds of Suffolk county.

Vice-Chairman, Hollis Burgess.

Henry Gray.

Maurice R. Smith.

Arthur P. Homer.

Hollis Burgess is one of the best known yachtsmen on the North Atlantic coast. He is the son of the famous designer of the cup defenders Mayflower, Puritan and Volunteer.

Arthur P. Homer is a motor boat designer, and a member of the Regatta Committee of the New England Engine and Power Boat Association.

Maurice R. Smith is a swimming instructor at Tenean Beach, Dorchester, and is interested in yachting.

Henry Gray is the well known yacht outfitter.

These five gentlemen represent different points of view, and it was the aim of the AMERICAN to obtain judges who would not all look at the parade through the spectacles of motor boat racers who might perhaps decide to award prizes to vessels which would best be adapted to them to the lay mind.

The judges are all well known, fair, unprejudiced and impartial and all those who have discussed the matter with the carnival managers have expressed approval of the board.

There was some fear among motor boat owners that boats would have to pass a censorship before being allowed to enter the parade and that after going to some trouble to decorate a boat it might be rejected.

This is quite unfounded. Any motor boat which wishes to enter may do so. There is no entrance fee and no inspection. The boats which are most attractive will win prizes, and the AMERICAN considers this sufficient incentive to make motorists do their best.

The prizes which are being offered are calculated to make owners of motor boats jump with joy.

The prizes are not all cups although some very beautiful and elaborate silver cups will be offered in some of the classes. They include:

A ship's clock.

A set of cushions for an open boat.

Compasses for cabin boats.

Silk pennants.

Thermos bottles.

Marine glasses.

There will be other attractive objects in the line of prizes.

The prizes are on exhibition in the window of the Kennedy store, 30 to 36 Summer street.

Awarding of Prizes.

Prizes will be awarded to the most attractive appearing motor boats in the following classes:

Cabin boats, 29 to 35 in length.

Open boats, 20 to 25 feet in length.

Open boats, under 20 feet.

Cabin boats, under 20 feet.

Power dories.

Speed boats, any size.

Special prizes will be awarded as follows:

Most grotesquely decorated motor boat.

Best illuminated boat.

Best decorated boat.

Best decorated naval launch or power boat.

Boat containing most effectively costumed occupants.

Special prizes to boat club which has largest number of entries. Fifteen boats from each club must enter to win this prize and the club must be a recognized organized association with a house.

All wishing to enter their boats in any of the classes will write to Carnival Manager, Boston AMERICAN.

Please give full name and address and class in which your boat is qualified to enter.

There is no entrance fee required. Owners may enter their motor boats in the parade and competition for prizes absolutely free of charge.

CHEER up, you little Dollars; don't give way to discontent,
Nor harbor the reflection that you're born but to be spent;
But gather round and hear the tale of one who bore your name
Who now is shining bright upon the pinnacle of fame.

In ages past this Dollars, with his careful, thrifty wife,
Was quite content to follow an extremely simple life.
He earned his modest ten per cent., the need for which was sore;
For little quarters, dimes and halves were playing round his door.
And when he found at last that he no more was worth his face,
Ten dollars—all his lusty sons—were there to take his place.

The ten went into stocks and trade—on bond and mortgage lent,
And sagely raised their earning power to twenty-five per cent.
Where marts of trade were busiest they plied their shrewd affairs;
Each one helped out the other one, and all of them got theirs,
And when they went back to the mint to be made new again
A hundred dollars took the place once occupied by ten.

The hundred did not trouble much with patient, wearing toil,
But got together in a bunch and made the Standard Oil.
No paltry twenty-five per cent. could satisfy them now:
They stood together to demand five hundred anyhow.
And—well, go up to Tarrytown some day and you will see
A billion scions of their race on John D.'s family tree.

HUNT BRUTAL HOLD-UP MEN

State police officials and detectives of the New Haven road are to-day on the trail of the men who held up and robbed Rolfe Bradbury of North Acton, tied him to his wagon and dragged him over the road for two miles, and then robbed the railroad stations at West Acton and at North Acton.

Bradbury's clothes were worn from his body and he was covered with bruises as a result of being pumped over the highway. He was unconscious for twelve hours from a blow on the head from a cudgel, and for a time was not expected to survive his injuries.

Had Blanket Over Head.

Bradbury, who is a former Representative, was driving home at night from Lowell. As it was raining, he had a blanket over his head. As he slowly sped in a section known as Carlisle, several men climbed over the back of his wagon and one of them dealt him a savage blow with a cudgel. This is all he remembers, but investigation has revealed that the highwaymen subjected their victim to heartless cruelty.

Taking a cloth from the wagon, the men used it to securely bind Bradbury's hands and feet, and gave his horse a cut with the whip. The horse apparently realized the greater part of the way, but at times he galloped along with his owner's body scraping over the roadway.

Four men who were standing at the North Acton station were amazed when they saw the driverless horse approaching and a man's body dragging under the wheels. They stopped the horse and released the man, whom they recognized as Bradbury. Lifting him into the wagon they drove him to his farmhouse and called Dr. Staples.

In Danger for Hours.

The doctor found Bradbury's body covered with bruises and cuts and the man still unconscious. He had to work over him for hours before he was out of danger.

Bradbury was the proprietor of his dairy, sale of produce in Lowell, but the highwaymen failed to discover a watch which he had in a small pocket in his trousers.

When the State police were notified they found that two railroad stations in the vicinity had been broken into the same night. They are convinced that the same men who held up Bradbury are responsible for these breaks.

KNIGHTS OUT TO WIN PRIZE

A lively contest is on among societies bearing the name of Columbus to win the magnificent cast of the landing of Columbus which is being made in the plastic art department of the New England Industrial and Educational Exposition to be given to the society getting the largest vote.

Different councils of the Knights of Columbus have already got a good start in the voting. The cast will be finished by Columbus Day and will be turned over to the winning council society that evening.

So Easy To Rid Your Face of Fuzz

(Style Dictum.)

No woman need longer suffer the pangs of humiliation or be distressed because of hairy growths on neck, face or arms, for with the aid of powdered delatone it is an easy matter to banish them for all time.

Go to your druggist and get an original package of delatone, then with a little water and delatone mix enough into a paste to cover the hairs not wanted. After letting remain two or three minutes, remove paste and wash the skin and the hairs will have completely disappeared. Delatone costs a dollar an ounce, but a second application is not required except in rare instances where the hair is quite heavy.

TO BUILD UP THE HEALTH

Take a Tonic for the Blood and You Will Be Surprised to See How Troublesome Symptoms Disappear.

Good health is more nearly a question of pure blood than most people think.

When the blood becomes thin and impure the system breaks down at its weakest point, perhaps the nerves or the stomach. But the trouble is in the blood and when the blood is restored to its normal condition the disease, whether of the nerves or stomach, is cured.

There can be no permanent cure of a trouble caused by thin blood until the blood is built up.

"I had been quite well since my baby was born nearly three years ago," says Mrs. O. E. T. Wilde, of No. 1011 Clark street, Cincinnati, Ohio. "I grew weak and doctored and nothing did me any good. My physician said I was going down hill as fast as I could and that there was danger that I would go into consumption. I lost flesh until I weighed only 100 pounds. My stomach was out of order and I had no appetite or ambition. I had a constant cough and looked haggard. I couldn't sleep soundly, would wake up at night and couldn't get to sleep again. I was so short of breath that I couldn't walk upstairs without panting hard.

"The doctor told me to go to the country and while there my mother said, 'Why don't you try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People again?' I had had typhoid fever when I was twenty years old and the attack left me very nervous. I took the pills then and they did me a great deal of good. So I started on them again. Very soon I began to notice that I could sleep soundly at night. That was the first sign of improvement. My nerves became stronger and my appetite became good. The cough left me entirely and so did the shortness of breath. I became strong and well and the neighbors all spoke about how healthy I looked. The color came back to my face and now nobody would think that I was ever threatened with consumption."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipts of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Send for our free diet book and pamphlet on "Diseases of the Blood."

FALLS 30 FEET; ONLY BRUISED

A few bruises were the only wounds Phyllis, eighteen months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton D. Albree of No. 18 Sherman square, Charlestown, received in a fall of thirty feet from the third story window of the Albree home to the ground.

Why Can't You Sleep?

ATENDENCY to worry over trifles, is given by many as the cause of their being unable to get a good night's rest, The reverse is true. Sleep would give you the strength and balance to overcome the cares and obstacles of every day life. Harmony of the bodily functions gives sleep, but if you are troubled with sleeplessness your tired mind and body seems only to inflame your nervous system into greater activity until you are tempted to use dangerous habit-forming drugs to obtain relief.

ARMED POSSE IN MAN HUNT

COATESVILLE, Pa., Oct. 10.—Armed men, scattered over a wide territory, are searching for a negro who attacked Ahnie McElhaney, a farmer's daughter.

BROKER HUNTED, THEFT CHARGED

The Boston police are searching for Richard L. Freeman, a Congress street bond broker, who is charged with larceny and embezzlement of securities valued at $10,500, the property of Donald M. Cameron of Lowell.

An attractive young woman, who was employed as clerk in a Dorchester street candy store and said to be an acquaintance of Freeman, is absent from the city. Freeman is a married man. Mrs. Freeman and their two children are living in Dorchester or Milton, where they resided before Freeman met the comely young candy saleslgirl.

Missing Since August.

Freeman has not been seen since August at his offices on the third floor of the State Mutual building, No. 50 Congress street.

Taylor & Carmichael, a Providence brokerage firm, are also trying to find Freeman. They declare that some money collected from their customers on bond sales has not been turned in. In all it is said that the total amount involved in the case may reach $40,000, though the warrant against Freeman names only $10,500. This is the amount of the claim made by Cameron.

The warrant for Freeman's arrest is in the hands of Captain John R. McGarr of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation. The police account of the Cameron charge is as follows:

In the Summer of 1910, Cameron delivered some bonds and securities to Freeman, with an order to sell the same. He sold some of the bonds and delivered the proceeds to his customer. Cameron then gave Freeman an order to buy five school bonds of the town of Wellesley.

Delivery Was Put Off.

Freeman claimed that he bought these and told Cameron to send him a check for $6,148.55.

The check for the desired amount was sent in November, 1910. The bonds were demanded from Freeman, but he kept putting the delivery off, until Cameron went to Europe. When he returned from his trip abroad, he again demanded the bonds, but was put off again. Finally a written demand was sent and Freeman disappeared.

The Badge of Honesty

Is on every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. More than forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood-purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone root and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed.

In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Though he offers the substitute for a less price you can't afford to experiment with your health. Go where they give you what you ask for without argument.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

We Save You Money Wherever You Buy

Copyright 1911 The House of Kuppenheimer Chicago

Many things have happened since this Live Store came to Boston. Sentiment has given way before cent-iment, and mere age in business no longer commands a premium.

Style, service and satisfaction are what men want in clothes, and stagnation is ceasing to masquerade as "exclusiveness." "Make good or make way" is the edict of the times.

You have seen Washington Street meet our prices on some of the smaller articles of men's wear, but they have not met—and never can meet—our prices on men's clothing or on the majority of our furnishing goods. But the fact that they are trying saves some money for those who still buy clothes on that expensive thoroughfare.

We do not stop with giving better values than others do. We give better values than others can. We are the largest spot cash buyers of high-grade clothing in New England, we pay only half the rent we would have to pay on Washington Street, and our idea of a fair profit is less than others expect or must get.

Kuppenheimer Clothes

We make a specialty of this famous brand because we have never seen any other make that so fully measures up to our standard of what good clothes ought to be in style, in materials and in workmanship. We have built up a big business in our five other stores on these clothes. We are doing the same thing here.

Harvard Squad Holds First Secret Practise of Season

By TED PARKE.

The Harvard eleven will have it thrown into them in proper style in the way of a scrimmage this afternoon behind closed doors in the Stadium, for there is no time to be lost in rounding the team into some kind of fighting trim, and this was certainly lacking in the game against Holy Cross. Secret practice which began yesterday will last for the rest of the season with the exception of a couple of days when the public will be allowed to feast their eyes on the Crimson jerseyed warriors when the team is not going through any of the new formations which are counted upon to put to rout the big team which come along later on.

Freddie Huntington, the most promising candidate for the pivotal position on the Crimson team up to date, was out in togs yesterday and got in the practice with all the fun he could display, having fully recovered from the bad cold which kept him out of practice for the greater part of last week, and also out of the game against Holy Cross. Freddie Huntington was also out and seemed to be in good form, and Gardner, the quarterback who was injured a week ago last Saturday when tackled, appeared on the field in citizens' clothes, and a cane which he used to good advantage, a bad limp still being very noticeable about his walk. It is doubtful whether he will get into the game again for the next month, and with Wigglesworth out of it for the year he will be sadly missed, for Potter will now have to do the entire work. Freedley, the only other quarter on the field, is not varsity material, and Harvard's chances now lie entirely with Potter.

Reynolds, a back on the freshmen team last Fall, and one who looks like very good material for the varsity, or for a substitute at least, got into action for the first time to-day, as a back on team B. As Potter was kept out of the practice because of laboratory work, Howard took his place at left end, and for the same reason Blackall was in at fullback in place of Morgan. The varsity lined up as follows:

Left end, Howard; tackle, Hooper; lg., Keaney; c., Huntington; rg., Fisher; tackle, Gardner, r. Smith; end, Potter; hbk., Campbell; fbk., Wendell; fb., Blackall.

Murphy a Fixture.

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 10.—Coach Yeids was much pleased with the showing Weslevan made in his no-score game at Amherst, Saturday. After a rest of Sunday all the players were able to report on Andrus field yesterday afternoon and got through light signal practice. Captain Murphy at center in the Amherst game seemed to outclass that position in the Cardinal line, and since the withdrawal from the game for the rest of the season of Captain Ballard,

Holy Cross Confident.

WORCESTER, Oct. 10.—The Holy Cross football squad will be given the first practice for the Dartmouth game this afternoon, and from all rumors, the athletic management of the college do nothing to keep the rush of applicants for places on the workout for the big games on the Purple and White schedule. After the afternoon session Coach Larkin had the squad out for an hour's light practice, giving the men signal drill, and the team plans to get them limbered up after the hard work of the past week. The men who have not been registered will be given the chance to get on the Purple and White aggregation next week, and Larkin has sent the big Holy Cross men postcards and the team looks to land it on the season following the semi-final game with Dartmouth. The squad is slated to be out Saturday afternoon, and it is probable that Saturday the Holy Cross crowd will see Larkin's men in action by Coach Larkin, this afternoon and during the remainder of the week in practice.

New Men for Green.

HANOVER, Oct. 10.—Today begin the work's coaching that must put the Green into shape to meet Holy Cross next Saturday in the season's first important game. After that, and nothing on the showing made by the New Hampshire team in that game, all the dopesters will begin their touchdown predictions for the Green at the meadow in Cambridge. On account of Saturday's game being the first of the season, Coach Foster will put the men through their paces and soon get his men in signal practice with orders to get all the speed they could muster. Mark Wright, a new man, received his first serious trust at quarter and a short, intensive scrimmage between the varsity and second teams followed. Clewell let loose the ball well and drew the first blood of the season when he fumped Ambrose and dropped on the pigskin. He appeared in uniform for the first time and promised to make some one trouble in the position.

Jones Watches Yale Squad.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Oct. 10.—Howard Jones, formerly head coach at Yale, arrived to-day and will spend a week looking over the football squad and giving suggestions. Yale is developing a complex style of attack and plans are being made for a great deal of secret practice before the game with the Army. Another big crowd is expected daily on drop kicking along with the rest of the kicking squad.

Tufts Works for Maine Game.

The Tufts squad is getting hard work in preparation for the University of Maine game next Saturday, one of the hardest games of the year. Coach Tobin is much pleased over the improvement the teams showed in the game with Connecticut State on Saturday. He said to-day there is still room for improvement, especially in the line. Schlotterbeck, the guard, who was hurt Friday, was in a game, but wasn't allowed to the scrimmage.

Posner's SCHOOL STREET

ALL-STARS IN SECOND GAME

AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—The All-Stars began this afternoon's game determined to make it two straight victories over the champion Athletics. On the other hand, the men led by Connie Mack resolved to get revenge for yesterday's setback.

Though the Athletics went into to-day's fray intent on winning, they did not throw caution to the wind, as they wanted to be in the best of condition for the world series which opens on Saturday.

The All-Stars were a pretty frisky bunch and presented as formidable a line-up as yesterday. A large crowd was out early in order to be in the sport and see one of the greatest aggregations of ball tossers that has ever been gathered together in action.

SCHOOLBOY ELEVEN GAMES ON THURSDAY

Owing to the fact that Thursday is a holiday, the usual large list of schoolboy football games scheduled for Wednesday will be played on that day. Only six games are on the schedule and none are of much local interest.

The strong Groton team will clash with the Harvard freshman team over in Cambridge. Groton has a strong, speedy team and if the already demonstrated its ability to Boston English and the latin school teams. Many of the stars with the local high school and some are playing with the Harvard team this year.

Milton Academy and Volkmann battle at Milton and a good hard game in anticipation. Milton has a good strong team on the field and will give Milton a hard battle.

Lexington plays Belmont at Lexington, Lawrence Academy clashes with the Lowell Textile team at Lowell and St. Andrews play the Middlesex school team at Concord.

Tom Layden is one of the most accurate throwers of forward passes in schoolboy circles. He has been showing up well in this line of the games so far this season.

The second game among the schoolboys is that Everett will clean up almost everything in its way this season like Malden did last year. So far this season Everett has defeated Arlington 39 to 0, one thing that local school followers say, also defeated Lynn Classical 12 to 0. For a fast, snappy team High looks good but should clean up the schools in its district. The backfield, with McKeever at quarter, Ellis and Ericson at fullback and Merrill and Holloway on the wings, is mostly small but proves to be a good ground gainer.

Keefe looks good. Coach Ziegler has put in many days of hard work with the New Hampshire team and it is said that the Durham eleven is in fine team at present. Keefe is the star of the squad. In the game with the Dartmouth freshmen the Exeter team was unable to gain and hold the green team to 0 to the score. Exeter plays Keefe on Saturday.

Reports from Philadelphia say the Central High school team, which plays Boston High next month, is strong and ready to open with any of the leading teams in the country. The Philadelphians are also looking high and low for a good football coach. The Central squad has had two coaches, Fritz and Bridges, to whip a strong team together, and they think that they have found the right combination.

WOMEN RESUME PLAY IN NATIONAL GOLF

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—With Mrs. R. H. Bartow of Philadelphia leading the field, play was resumed to-day in the women's national golf championship on Belmont links. Ideal weather again prevailed. Miss Dorothy Campbell of Atlanta has shown by her first day's play that she is going to make a big factor in the tournament. To-day Mrs. Bartow was paired with Miss Harvey of Hamilton. While Mrs. Bartow's score for eighteen holes was 94 the initial day was 87, she said she hoped to better it.

REDS PLAY NAPS FOR CHAMPIONSHIP OF OHIO

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 10.—Football weather was on tap when the Cleveland Naps and Cincinnati Reds prepared to start the first game of their series for the State championship to-day. The Reds won the series last year, but the Naps figure their third place showing with Cobb in the fold as a real championship outfit this season. Keifer for Cleveland and Suggs for Cincinnati probably will pitch in the opener.

FIFTY ENTERED IN YALE TENNIS MEET

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 10.—Play in the preliminary rounds of the singles and doubles of the Yale tennis tournament began to-day. There are over fifty entries in the preliminary matches.

NEWTON HIGH WINS.

The Newton High school football team added another victory to its string yester day, when it defeated the strong Hyde Park eleven, 29 to 0.

Hyde Park put up a plucky game, but could not overcome the weight of the Newtonponents. The feature was the playing of Conroy, Murphy and Hyde Park's captain, while for Hyde Park Ayres, Robertson and Ehpinah were the stars.

DOOIN'S JOB SAFE.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Horace S. Fogel, president of the Philadelphia National League baseball club, announced yesterday that Manager Dooin will manage the team again next year. Dooin's contract as manager expired at the end of this season, but his contract as a player has two more years to run.

BE READY FOR HOBBS' STORIES

To-morrow is the day for all followers of football, especially those who are playing on the teams that represent scores of schools, academies and colleges throughout New England, to begin the great series of articles which Henry H. Hobbs, former Dartmouth and Yale player and All-Amerl can tackle in 1909, is to write for the AMERICAN.

It is seldom that a man with such a thorough knowledge of the game has been engaged to write a popular series of articles. The story which Mr. Hobbs will have in to-morrow's AMERICAN will be illustrated with photographs posed by him showing just how the position of tackle should be played. The accompanying articles will be the best coaching ever printed of the fine points of filling this important place in the lineup of an eleven.

Mr. Hobbs is going to tell how to make the most of playing each and every position on a team, during his great series. Close study of the articles with which he is to entertain and instruct AMERICAN readers may mean to some ambitious followers of the game that they will "make" the team for which they are now trying.

No paper can afford to miss these important articles. The giant tackle knows football from A to Z. On Wednesday and Saturday of each week he will have in the AMERICAN a story explaining just what qualifications a man should have to fill each of the positions and how the positions should be played. In the Sunday AMERICAN Hobbs will tell of his work done on the gridiron in the week past by leading college teams and will review the Harvard-Dartmouth, Harvard-Cornell and Army-Yale matches.

The former Andover captain and Dartmouth and Yale star has played end, tackle and guard during his great career on the gridiron, and has received instruction from some of the best football coaches in the country. Readers of his articles will have the benefit of all this experience.

Mr. Hobbs began his football career at Amherst in 1903. He played all that year and tackle the next. For his great work in 1904 he was made captain of the 1905 Andover eleven were some of the best football players of the last few years. Most of them afterwards made big names for themselves in college athletics.

He played left tackle on the Yale team in 1908 and was on the 1909 team that rolled up 260 points and held its opponents scoreless.

Mr. Hobbs graduated last year and was engaged to coach the Amherst eleven. He is now employed in a Boston banking house. That his knowledge of the game is not surpassed in this vicinity is conceded.

Amateur Notes

The Somerville R. B. and the Indians of Lowell will play at the Cleveland field on Columbus Day morning. Neither of the teams have played yet, but a good game is expected. Both have experience on the gridiron and many old high school stars compose the elevens.

A large crowd is expected to attend the football game on Columbus Day between the U. S. S. Nebraska eleven and the Orient Heights A. C. of East Boston. The Jackies expect to give the Orients a stiff battle.

The Covington A. C. of South Boston would like to book games for columbus and holidays during November, with fast 125-130-pound teams. Manager C. Thompson, No. 7 Buttonwood court, Dorchester.

The second team of the General Electric Technical School of Lynn desires games with out of town teams. School teams preferred with about 125-130-pound as their average weight. Preston L. Berry, No. 23 Commercial street, Lynn.

The Minuteman S. and A. Club of Chelsea would like to arrange games with strong 125-130-pound teams for Columbus Day and October 14. Robert Steele, manager, No. 5 Beach street, Revere.

And also he travels the bases in style.
His work as a catcher was certainly raw,
But as centre fielder he tickles McGraw.

And as a result he is all to the bad.
If only he'd saved it till November first
He'd have had enough money to drown out the thirst.

Including Dineen, the great pitcher of yore;

Though you may not believe it. Still, it might be worse.
But you can believe one thing—we're telling you right,

BOSTON PACER WINS FOR COX

LEXINGTON, Oct. 10.—Cohan will not try against the wagon record at the trots this week as his owner C. K. G. Billings has left the city but the champion will try against his record of 1:58¾, to sulky, providing a good day and track can be secured before the close of the meeting. The champion is in fine condition now but the weather man seems to be against him.

The Fasig Tipton Company of New York which conducts the harness horse sales in New York has announced that it will invade the Western field the coming Winter, giving a harness horse sale at Indianapolis in March, the dates to be announced later. The Boston paper Brahmin Baughman is proving a consistent winner for Walter Cox, as he won a $5,000 event at the Illinois State Fair last week and easily won the $2,000 Wilson stakes here. Cox looked to have a second race won when he landed the second heat of the 2:07 pace, with Sara Ann Ratch, but the rain interfered.

"Best Havana" Poet 10¢ CIGAR "Flenty of It" MADE IN BOSTON

EXPERIENCE IS THE GREATEST TEACHER

Human beings have decided that "Experience is the greatest teacher." Experience teaches us and teaches you. It is the great leveler of theory, surmise and guesswork.

Our experience has taught us to build good clothes. It has taught us to avoid cheap methods. It has taught us to respect the public's opinion, and depend upon honesty of purpose for continued patronage. Let us assume that you are a man of individual taste. That means that you prefer tailor-made clothes to ready-to-wear garments.

It then becomes a question as to which tailor, of all the tailors in Boston, you will choose to be your tailor. Which tailor will get the order for your next suit?

It is true that we would like to serve you, would like to make you a suit of clothes, but we can't invite you to visit our shop in the expectation of finding a suit of clothes below $15 in price. That is the lowest price at which we make a suit, the very lowest price at which a suit can be made that is fit for a gentleman to wear. You have had your experience with cheaper suits or had an experience trying to get other tailors or clothiers to give you a suit as good as their advertised claims, for less than $15. It either cost you experience or cost you something.

We wish to turn your sad experience of the past few years into a profit for our shop. The only way we can do that is by getting your future trade and holding it.

If we get it we will guarantee to keep it, so if $15 to $25 appeals to you as a fair range of prices for a suit of good clothes, we think it is up to you to give us an order and it might just as well be right away as waiting until next week.

HICTANER—The Man That Lived in the Water

One of the Strangest Stories Ever Written

By Jean de la Hire

The story opens with the arrival of Fulbert, a Buddhist monk of the Tibetan Lama, at an isolated and mysterious house on the western end of the island of Cabrera. By a signal he is admitted and greets Oxus, the master of the house, with whom he is plotting for the making of a human creature which, by means of vivisection, will have such powers that it will finally bring all the nations of the earth to his feet.

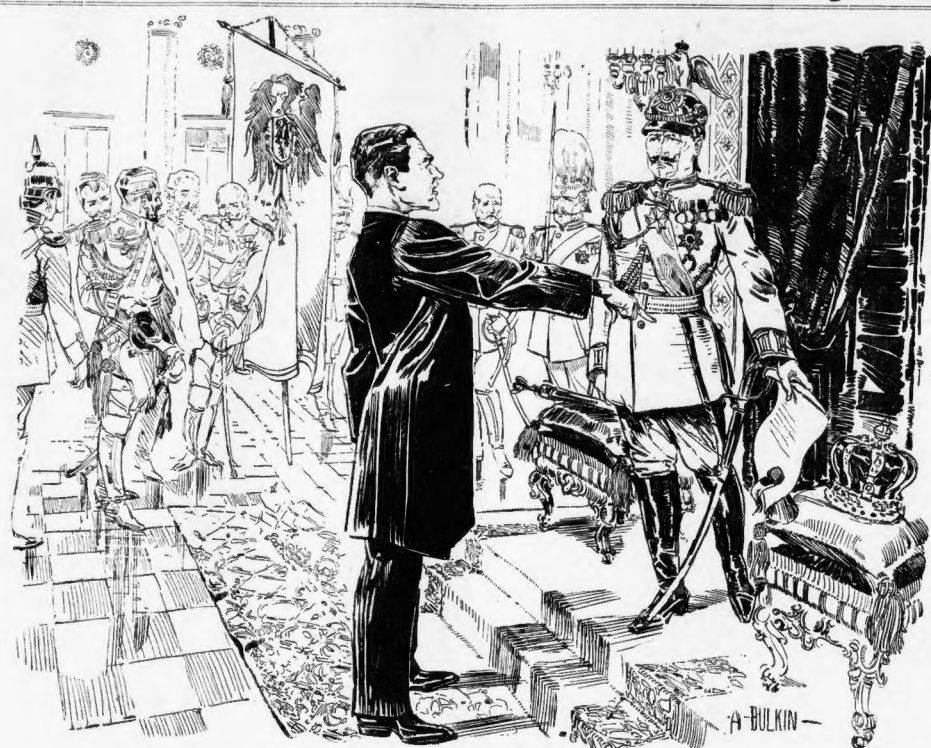
Outside a wild storm rages, but the two are safe in their strange meeting place. The home of Oxus has been built to give the greatest security and secrecy to its occupants. With the pressing of a button walls disappear or appear. Here Oxus has performed remarkable vivisectional feats upon animals, the last and most important being the transplanting of the lungs of a great fish into the breast of an orang-outang. The beast stood the experiment and became at once a fish and an ape. It was made amphibious and lived under water as easily as on land.

Fulbert is wildly elated when he hears of the success of the experiment with the anthropoid, a success giving promise of higher success when vivisection is used upon a child to produce an amphibious human creature.

In the secret Lamaist order the killing of human beings was not considered a matter to bring regret if murder was done in their cause, the cause being a dream of world power, a power that would give the Lamaists the actual control of conduct of the peoples of the earth.

These fanatics, working with the frightful strength of their kind, finally decide on the means by which they will attain this goal. The replacing of human lungs by the breathing organs of a fish will make a man-fish, a creature that may slip into the sea and from below sweep the oceans of every ship that floats.

Oxus had expected his own daughter, Bertha, to give birth to a male child, but a little girl was born instead. The plotters then decide to look elsewhere, and Fulbert, in a Lamaist monastery in Spain, brings the search to a successful close when he takes from Martha de Bilguires her male infant born out of wedlock. The mother goes mad when the child is torn from her breast. The babe is perfect in form and health. After a week Fulbert journeys with it to the strange house on the island of Cabrera, where Oxus is to perform the vivisection, which will give to the child powers that human beings do not possess.



"You must obey!" — The amazing scene in the Kaiser's audience room.

A-BULKIN—

PART I. (Continued).

EIGHTEEN YEARS AFTER

EIGHTEEN years had passed since the terrible scene in the heathen monastery.

It was the morning of February second, in that year which was destined to see so many catastrophes.

In the messtoom of the torpedo boat Cyclone, lying at anchor in Villefranche harbor, two officers were seated, reading the papers. One was Lieutenant Louis de Chesnel, in command, the other his friend, Ensign Sainte-Claire.

"Here's a funny thing," Clesrat suddenly exclaimed. "Have you seen it?"

"What is it?" asked Sainte-Claire.

"A remarkable story in the 'Matin,' said the commandant, pointing to an article in the third column of the front page, headed —"Visionary, Fool, Joker," and underneath in smaller letters, "At the Palace of the German Emperor."

"Let me hear it," said Sainte-Claire, interested.

"Well, you read it aloud? I've only skimmed it in my mad desire to see how it ended."

In a rich, deep voice, with a strong accent of the south of France, Sainte Claire read:

"The Palace of the German Emperor—Berlin, January second. (From our special correspondent.)

"A most peculiar thing took place yesterday in the Kaiser's audience room at Potsdam during the New Year's reception.

"The dignitaries of state had all passed before their ruler, when suddenly a tall, thin, somber-looking man, with a strongly aquiline profile, advanced toward His Majesty, who seemed rather surprised at seeing this unfamiliar person before him.

"The stranger spoke several words which no one heard, and handed a rolled parchment to the Emperor. Then in a clear voice which reached all the bystanders, he said:

"'If Your Majesty wishes to avoid great misfortunes for his empire, he must conform to the instructions contained in this parchment. Read it, Sire, before the Council of State and decide.

"'If on February first you do not by a solemn proclamation to the Reichstag promise full and entire adhesion to the instructions herein contained, you may fear for the safety of your subjects, for your crown, for your empire itself."

With these amazing words, the stranger ceased to speak.

The Emperor mechanically unrolled the parchment and read, while the petrified attendants stood by reverently. Suddenly he crushed the parchment angrily in his hand, and cried imperiously:

"Arrest this man!"

Too late, alas! The man had disappeared.

It was in vain that a search was made throughout the palace, the grounds and even the city of Potsdam. No slightest trace of him was to be found.

After some confusion, the audience was terminated. What was written on the parchment? No one knows except His Majesty, but perhaps, if it pleases the emperor, our readers may know more tomorrow.

Sainte-Claire had finished reading. After a few moments pause, he said:

"Now, really, that's remarkable! A lunatic, of course."

"But," observed Clesrat, "we must find what the later papers have to say. There must be more to this story."

What the Parchment Said

He bent over, took a bundle of papers from the floor and placed it upon the table.

For a month the two men had not been able to keep in touch with the news of the day, because the squadron manoeuvres that year, in which they had been occupied, had been especially exacting. Of course, the papers had come on board regularly, but there had been no time to read them. Therefore, the morning was doubtless being made good use of by all the officers of the fleet as she lay at anchor in Villefranche harbor. The landing was to be made at noon, and, after a good night's rest, they were in newspaper reading mood.

"Here it is!" cried Clesrat. "January 4th! Last edition! Read it!"

Before giving Sainte-Claire the paper, however, he unfolded it, ran over the first page, and his eyes fairly jumped from their sockets as he exclaimed, excitedly:

"Oh, now, that is the limit of patience! Look—just look! Read to me!" Sainte-Claire took the paper and read:

Ultimatum to the Kaiser.

(Telegram from our special correspondent.)

Public amusement at the scenes at Potsdam, about which I informed our readers yesterday, has increased hourly instead of abating. Of course, sooner or later, the excitement will explode in laughter, for we are evidently dealing with a humbug or a practical joker. The contents of the parchment have leaked out. The first edition issued a hundred lines, and it consumnds the Emperor to hold himself in readiness to—

First, to dissolve the Reichstag.

Second, to dismiss his ministers, and the chancellor, to make way for men who will later be designated.

Third, we warn all officers and subordinates in army and navy, the colonies, in departments of finance, public instruction, commerce, etc., that they must obey the commands of the new ministers under pain of death.

Fourth and lastly, to give his solemn oath that he, King of Prussia and Emperor of Germany, will be only the humble executor of the commands to be given by the same man who has handed him the parchment.

Everything can be definitely arranged upon the stranger's de cais blanc? The Unknown's reappearance within a year.

At an open meeting of the Reichstag, February first, the German Emperor must proclaim that he awaits the master and that he will obey. Failing to do this, the German Empire will be destroyed within six months.

Sainte-Claire stopped reading, and the two officers burst into laughter.

Clesrat was the first to control himself, and he said:

"Surely that's not the end! There must be still more. Let's go on"—and they fell to unfolding the papers.

There certainly was a sequel, but somehow they did not find that sequel extraordinary enough.

From the 2nd to the 31st of January each day's news was filled with further chapters of the thrilling story. In just twenty-nine days, this is what went on in the world:

On January 4, "The Unknown," in some mysterious manner, stood before the Czar of Russia and, using the same form as to the Kaiser, handed him an almost identical parchment. The only difference in wording was such as was demanded by the difference in government and constitution of the two empires.

On January 5 and 7 the Kings of Sweden and Norway received the same mysterious sort of visit, and almost the same documents.

The Kings of Denmark, Holland and Belgium were approached under differing circumstances on the 9th, 11th and 12th of January by an unknown man, who gave them the message and made good his escape, this time without speaking.

On January 13 the President of the French Republic received the famous document just as he was leaving the chamber. The giver, as usual, vanished.

"The Unknown" Disappears

This was the last time "The Unknown" was seen, for the nations had come to their senses at last, and he dared not risk arrest.

The London Times received the document addressed to the King of England and Emperor of India, and published it in full. The following day the Diario, of Madrid, and La Paz of Lisbon, received the ultimatum by mail, and published it. Then, one by one, the leading journal in each capital of the civilized world—from Italy and Austria to the two Americas, with the exception of Persia and Japan—received the extraordinary summons, either by letter, telegram or cable.

By the evening of January 27, all the rulers of the earth had been warned that if they did not solemnly proclaim their perfect submission to the will of their unknown ruler, they would call down upon themselves and their people ruin and annihilation.

If they yielded, on the contrary, "The Unknown" promised:

First, to pay in gold, within a week, all the debts of State.

Second, to unburden the people of their taxes for a year, in order to later impose less heavy ones.

Third, to do away with the standing army.

The papers of the 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st only contained commentaries upon the prodigious "bluff" and a humorous account of the useless searches of the police for its perpetrator. Those of February 1 suggested seriously that none of the heads of State seemed disposed to obey.

The Ultimatum to the World

Twelve o'clock struck on the messtoom clock as Clesrat and Sainte-Claire finished reading.

"As a mystery, this is surely a success," said the ensign. "And the most delightful part of it is that the genial, omnipotent mystery has kept on being a mystery!"

"Yes, it will," said the lieutenant, "that is the piece we pay for being busy playing at war on a torpedo boat. Admiral Germinet, the indefatigable, sends us the whole month behind the rest of the world.

"Let's go to luncheon. We will hear about it at the hotel and get today's papers."

Twenty minutes from the time the two officers landed at Villefranche, they entered the dining room of the town's principal hotel. The tables were almost all occupied by the officers—great and small—of the fleet.

"Clesrat!" called out one of them. "Have you got the news papers?"

"The Unknown's affair, you mean? Yes, it's a humbug. Have they the say today? Has the Emperor of Germany taken the oath of allegiance? Has the Czar submitted, or the Sultan of Turkey?"

"Walt," said another, holding out a copy of the Matin to the two newcomers. "Read this one."

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

Daysey's Father's Plan for the Control of Wives.

LYSANDER JOHN APPLETON, Kin Commissioner-General, disposes of many troublesome kin questions for others, but his authority is not recognized in his own family.

He decides for an anxious public if a feud exists, has any rights through the ties of kinship, and limits those rights to the minimum, but when his wife's cousins, seven degrees removed, appear with nine trunks, he meekly gives up his bedroom and den (I) et, the room where he usually used to do all his growling) and climbs the stairs to the attic, taking with him his many volumes on kin questions, all works of his active brain, and which are regarded as masterpieces by his kin-ridden constituency.

He has seven volumes for the control of wives and can't control his own according to the rules laid down in one of them. Whatever influence the Kin Commissioner-General has over his wife is gained through a circuitous route.

The following instance is related for the benefit of husbands whose stomachs faint at the sight of the potatoes brought on the table meal after meal, either in half-mashed lumps, or without having felt the potato masher. It is the only occasion when Lysander John gets ahead of his wife.

When he learns from the sounds coming from the kitchen that she has taken the potatoes from the fire he saunters into the kitchen and looks at her in a listless sort of way till she has the potato masher in hand and is ready for action.

"I say that worthless brother of yours," he will say, "said he was drunk as usual."

"Talk about your own worthless kin, why don't you?" she will snap back, bringing the potato masher down on the potatoes with unusual vigor.

"I haven't any as worthless as yours," the Kin Commissioner-General will reply, and the potato masher comes down on the potatoes with all the weight of outraged wrath, and as he enumerates them the blows come harder with every kin named, and her ire grows, and she doesn't know her arm aches, and she mashes and mashes, pounding the potatoes with a violentness that reduces them to the consistency of cream.

Then, having accomplished his object, Lysander John walks out of the kitchen, secure in the judgement of having his potatoes prepared as he likes them.

"But I do not recommend this plan to all husbands," said the Kin Commissioner-General in a recent exhaustive decision on the Rights of Man, "for the reason that all wives under such irritating circumstances would not confine the noble work of the potato masher to the potatoes. There are women and women, as I state specifically on page thirteen, chapter three."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

NO HARM IN WRITING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young man and I know that he loves me. I heard rumors about him, which denied and had his mother prove to be untrue. I love him dearly, and do not like to give him up, but every time I go out with him I hear some rumor about him. He is going away soon, and I would like to know if you think it advisable to correspond with him, as I am worried about it and don't know what to do. HEADEL.

THERE is no harm in your correspondence with this young man provided you write to him as a friend, saying nothing that you would be ashamed to show to the world. If, however, his place to begin the correspondence, and it is better not to write too often. Let me advise you not to become too intimately acquainted with this young man until you have judged just by your own sense his true nature. If his character does not convince you of his sincerity, then nothing else will. Above all, do not be blinded in your opinion or believe what may be mere hearsay. Find out for yourself, and if he were upright and earnest you could quickly trust him and your mind would be set at ease concerning the false rumors.

TAKE PARENTS' ADVICE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and in love with a young man who is twenty-one. My parents object to my speaking to him. Kindly advise me what to do, for my heart is heartbroken and would hate to part with him. HEARTBROKEN.

YOUR parents realize the situation better than you. Remember that they know more about life than you do.

You are too young to marry and a friendship between you and this young man evidently does not exist. You will discover your real love affair when it comes along by and by. A mother prizes the many mistakes a young girl is apt to make before she is old enough to realize her own mind.

Let me ask you to follow the advice given by those who know better.

Be friendly with this young man, but store up all your affection for the man you are to marry.

Perhaps, after all, this young man may be the one; but wait and make certain.

HER REPLY IS PLAIN.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am thirty-two and am deeply in love with a young woman about twenty years of age. I have been keeping company with her for the last four years. When we met she seemed to be very much interested in me, but of late she has almost forgotten me. Whenever I have been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use of Danderine, when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, and you get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

NO MORE DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR OR ITCHY SCALP IF YOU DO THIS.

Your hair looks soft, fluffy, lustrous and abundant after a Danderine hair cleanse

Immediate?—Yes. Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits, particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is

A Marriage Censorship

By ADA PATTERSON

MRS. ALICE HARRIMAN, a thoughtful woman, has thought out a new cure for divorce—or, precisely speaking, it is a preventive remedy. This is her view of the matter which is agitating churches and individuals, States and potentates, and which is one of the vital problems of American life.

"Concisely stated, divorce is the crisis of differences. Obviously to forestall the difference is to minimize divorces. If two natures show no elements in common save mere physical attraction, the question of marriage should not even be considered by them. There must be a few similar, basic characteristics to give marriage a single chance to be happy.

"It is hard for two persons of the same sex to remain close friends unless there be some common meeting ground, some mutual concord felt perhaps more than expressed. It is doubly difficult to live in the matrimonial relation if such unity of temperament be lacking.

"Granting that the marriage ceremony has been performed between dissimilar natures, and the discovery of absolute incompatibility is made, the necessity of a separation or unconditional divorce is indisputable. Each wrongs the other by remaining together, and if there are children the injury is almost irreparable.

"One is held in bondage for any of the various mistakes he makes in business. It is accepted as a matter of course that he should work his way out of them. A marriage failure should not be a finality, though the cause for the separation should claim the attention of disinterested judges, and no divorce should be granted without a thorough substantiation of the facts.

Need Marriage Censor

"Perhaps a marriage censor will solve the problem. I am inclined to think the creation of such an office would be a solution of the problem of divorce, though I should not envy the official his or her—it should be, because women have deeper and subtler wisdom and more tact—task.

"In Washington where I lived for many years, there was a medical censorship of male candidates for marriage. This prevented many marriages that would have been undoubted failures. A marriage censor's duty should be to arrange for the medical examination of the men and women of marriageable age and grant only those who merit it a clean bill of matrimonial health. Let me explain.

"Suppose a man has strongly marked tubercular tendencies, even though they have not developed into actual disease. He would, if there were a marriage censor, have to forego wedded life for the good of posterity. Suppose he was of a cancerous family with a predisposition toward that dreaded disease. He should not be allowed to marry. The marriage censor would forbid it. If there were the taint of insanity in his family and he did not seem stronger than his heredity again the ban should be placed upon his plans for marriage.

"But the bar to marriage need not be wholly physical. There are as many characteristics in the channel of the matrimonial stream. For instance, the man may be irritable. An irritable temper is the commonest of the rocks. If he has an exceedingly irritable temper he should be forbidden to marry."

I asked Mrs. Harriman how the maid could guess the existence of this irritable temper in the man. Men smile when they come a-courting.

"That is the marriage censor's business," she replied. "There would be plenty of means for finding out. A test of a man's character is the way he treats his employes. The censor could find out, as it possible to get a person's financial status. The minister, the doctor, the man's employer or business associates, his banker, if he has one, can tell her what she needs to know. She need not go among the neighbors unless she wishes.

"Incurable stinginess is another fault that menaces marriages, although it is an obstacle that can be overcome. For I think the law should force a man to give a large proportion of his income to his wife. The relative amount should be fixed. If they have children, it should be at least two-thirds. I know a couple who are living happily, in which the husband always gives his wife three-fourths of the income for the support of the household.

"Drunkenness and dissoluteness should be a bar. If the marriage censor did her duty, no man with a record of sprees and bad associations should be allowed to marry. That would put a premium upon clean living. As a matter of fact, few men are fit to marry."

"How many?" I asked.

Two Men Out of Ten

"Two out of ten," promptly responded Mrs. Harriman.

"And how many women?"

Mrs. Harriman's eyes softened. She is a warm friend of her own sex, a living proof that it is false that no woman was ever friend of women.

"Women are the marrying sex," she answered. "Most of them are eligible by nature. You insist upon figures? Very well, then, eight out of every ten women will make good wives. Extravagance and thoughtlessness are their principal faults, and those are due to lack of training. Women are by nature unselfish.

"I admit that the marriage censor in the community would have a hard time. She would be called a snooper. But she would be an evangel of better matrimonial things. And her reward in this world would be the fact that she is promoting true marriage, which is the highest happiness that humanity can know."

"ARE you?" he said, absently. "I —really I don't know. Wat it a very satisfactory interview—or was it folly to imagine that it could be satisfactory?"

There was something in his tone that made her glance at him with a quick curiosity. His eyes were bent on the ground and his brows drawn together in the little crease of perplexity she had learned to know.

"Surely," she began hesitatingly, "you don't think for a moment that there was really anything in what Father Armstrong said about the bush telegraph?" she asked with a stab of anxiety in her voice.

"Good gracious, no!" His denial was almost brusque; so brusque that it quickened the suspicion it was meant to quell.

"Con—I believe that you really"—

The Doubt in the Mind

"That I won't! Think that John Sare murdered Martindale? No, I am not mad enough for that, Clemency! Unless he was a homicidal maniac—which we know he was not—what motive could he have for doing so purely foolish a thing?"

"What motive?—oh, no! oh, no! It's not the sort of thing that one could bear to think of. One could imagine so many awful things," Clemency said.

"If you want to know what I was thinking of," he said abruptly, "it was this: That men have their own ideas of God. It turned me cold to hear how that priest spoke to you—as though Martindale was a martyr who had propitiated his Creator by the sacrifice of his life instead of being a mad fool who threw up the useful, honest work he was doing for his faith in this country, and went out, leaving you here to break your heart, Clemency. I call it selfishness—blind selfishness of a peculiarly rank kind."

Had his words been intended to divert the girl's thoughts from any suspicions channel, he could not have been more successful. She turned to him with a heightened color.

"How can you say that?" she demanded indignantly. "How dare you say that to me?"

"Because it happens to appear to me to be the truth," he said quietly.

Disquieting Thoughts

She made no response; her heart for the moment felt too full for words, but, despite her "burning indignation against Tring, he succeeded in dispelling the influence that the priest's words had exerted over her mind. She parted from him coldly at Charing Cross, with no hint as to any future meeting, and as the train moved out of the station she settled back in her corner a prey to angry, disquieting thoughts.

For Conrad Tring also were disquieting thoughts—thoughts that to a certain extent evaded the girl from whom he had just parted, thoughts that were concerned more largely with the priest, thoughts that strove to pierce through the mists to Africa. But presently a woman wove herself into those thoughts—a woman's face obtruded itself insistently upon his memory. But it was not the face of Clemency Westcarth—it was the face of the woman whom he had been talking with that air of charming intimacy to John Martindale outside the gorgeous entrance to the Empire's restaurant.

The house where Conrad Tring occupied a couple of floors stood in one of the steep streets leading with abrupt quiet from the turmoil and bustle of the Strand to the river. An old, bow-fronted house, its plastered front damp stained and black with the assault of years, a house already earmarked for destruction, living out the last years of a long lease on borrot sufferance.

Inside, its narrow hall and shallow staircase, the panelled walls painted a dull, depressing drab, had yet something of the attraction of pathos. The first floor was occupied by a firm of lawyers whose business, apparently, was mainly connected with ecclesiastical property. The staircase was haunted with pale-faced, timid-looking nuns and swarthy-faced, bewildered-looking foreign priests. But Tring had never rubbed shoulders so much with the Church as he did in these latter days; for now there were added to the comers and goers to the black-robed, white-coifed, picturesque nuns and hatty-dressed priests to their ill-fitting clerical clothes, oddly attired women in clumsy, grotesque garments, and white, downcast faces, that seemed to cry aloud for the protection of wimple and veil, and men whose features, whatever their dress might be, had the unmistakable priestly stamp that nothing but death can efface.

A Meeting

This afternoon, as Conrad Tring turned into his doorway, he saw in the depths of the staircase the shadowy figure of two nuns, and stood aside at the foot of the stairs to allow them to descend. One of them he saw, and very feeble, with a face which natural vivacity had wrinkled incredibly; the other was young, with a fresh-colored, comely, serene face; both were weeping—the slow, difficult tears of old age.

It did not require much effort of imagination to divine the cause. The men and women who came to that house were, for the most part, bent on the same errand; even if the younger woman had not, as she inclined her head in passing murmured a few precise, he would have known them for what they were—exiled nuns.

Tring looked after them, conscious of a pang that was almost shame that he was able to do nothing to comfort their distress or to assuage it. He wondered in what name—of God or man—men dared to cause such useless, unnecessary suffering.

On the first floor landing he came face to face with a man coming out hurriedly from Tring's office; the landing was narrow, and the man of robust build. As he drew back to let Tring pass he raised his hat with a little deprecatory gesture, and Tring saw to his surprise that it was Father Armstrong.

A Note of Eagerness

The priest was more surprised than he was.

"Ah, Mr. Tring, what brings you to these streets?" he asked. "Surely you have no need to have dealings with our people?"

"The light that was turned on by a porter in the basement by the electric switch above the priest's head and showed Tring his face clearly. He was almost startled to see how tired and worried the old man looked. It was only two days since Clemency and he had visited the pro pietary in Clayton square, and the priest ought to have aged in those two days; the buoyancy that had been characteristic of his manner seemed almost gone.

"Is anything forbid?" Tring said piously. "From my legal brethren deliver me. No, I happen to live here—won't you come up to the old man now, father? I have a set of most picturesque chambers in London."

There was a certain note of eagerness in Tring's voice. The meeting with Father Armstrong was so peculiarly well-timed—he had come back from a long tramp through the riverside quarters as far as Rotherhithe with the express intention of writing to ask him for another interview—now that he was here on the very spot he felt he must get him upstairs on some pretext or another.

The old man hesitated.

Seeking an Interview

"You are very kind," he said. "If you will allow me to rest for a few minutes I should be grateful. I feel tired—worried and annoyed—hopeless, which is a thing a priest should never allow himself to be."

Tring said nothing as he led the way upstairs. That was the charm of the man—his economy of speech; the weary and worried need never dread the sting of a platitude at his hands.

Tring had made no idle boast when he spoke of the picturesqueness of his chambers. The suite of rooms into which he ushered the priest was unique in vanishing London. There were electric lights on the staircase and in the lawyer's office, but not in these rooms, low and oak panelled. Through the bow window with its wide, cushioned window seat, one could see the river, a slow, gray flood, discernible now in the falling twilight by its purplish, slow-moving lights, by the lamps on the embankment that glowed like pale jewels strung on a platinum chain.

The priest stood looking out at it while Tring lit the candles in the twisted brass sticks that stood on the mantelpiece, high and delicately carved in a fanciful design of vine leaves and grapes, above which was the emblazoned coat-of-arms of the first Tring who had come from his estate in a cleft of the Hampshire Downs to idle in these chambers three generations ago.

"I was thinking of you a few moments before we met," Tring said, when his visitor was ensconced in one of the deep leather chairs. The priest had refused all offer of refreshment. He uttered, he said, to his African rule of two meals a day, and advocated its adoption in England; he had declined Tring's tobacco also, but professed with a sigh of gratified anticipation a peculiarly evil-looking, short black pipe. "I have wished more than once to renew our conversation of the other day."

To Be Continued To-morrow

Same Old Story

IT became the solemn duty of justice to pass sentence on an aged man for stealing.

"It is a shame that a man of your age should be giving his mind up to stealing. Do you know any reason why sentence should not be pronounced on you according to the law?"

"Now, judge," was the reply of the aged thief, "it is getting to be a little monotonous. I would like to know how a fellow can manage to please you judges. What's the matter with me? I squirted three years, and the judge said I ought to be ashamed of myself stealing at my age. I squirted four more, and the judge said it was a shame that a man in his very best years should steal. And now when I am seventy years old you pop some one else on the same old story. Now, I would like to know what sort of a man a fellow is that you are according to your notion."

His Good Points

THE old man had given his son a very little education, and had taken him into his shop. The young fellow was ever nice about a great many things, but the father made no comment. One day an incident arose from a customer.

"I wish to goodness," exclaimed the son, "that Gibson would learn to spell!"

"What's the matter with it?" inquired the father cheerfully.

"Why, he spells coffee with a 'k.'"

"No—does he? I never noticed it."

"Of course, you never did," said the son petulantly. "You never notice anything but"—

"Perhaps not, my son," replied the old man gently, "but there is one thing I do notice which you will learn by and by, and that is that Gibson pays cash."

EASY ON THEM

The summer may have been impudent but no doubt the customer smiled in spite of herself.

"How do you sell bad eggs?" asked the young housewife.

"Never told any," replied the shopman; "but if I did have anything to sell a bad egg I'd break it gently."

Ireland and Home Rule

By ELEANOR ROOT.

The writer of this article is an American girl who is now in Ireland studying the literature and art of that country.

"When the inhabitants of a country quit it en masse because the government will not make it a fit place for them to live in, that government is judged and condemned."—John Stuart Mill.

"The landlords in their dealings with Irish tenants have been little better than skilful thieves."—Froude.

"In thirty-three years, from 1849 to 1882, they, the landlords of Ireland, evicted and drove from their homes 363,000 peasant families."—Lawrence Ginnell, M. P.

"The misery and distress which your ill-fated country, Ireland, has been so frequently subjected to, and has so often experienced, by such a combination of rapine, treachery, and violence as would have disgraced the name of government in the most arbitrary country in the world, has most sincerely affected your friends in America, and has engaged the serious attention of Congress."—Benjamin Franklin.

We Americans rose against the mother country, our own flesh and blood, when she did not accord to us our rights. Can we wonder, therefore, that the Irish, to whom England is an alien in race as well as in thought, should have fought throughout the years, and should ever continue fighting for Home Rule, the measure granted willingly to Australia, New Zealand, Canada, and even the newly-created colony of South Africa?

Gladstone split his party over Home Rule, but he did not achieve it. Daniel O'Connell, "the Liberator," who freed Erin from the cruel penal disabilities imposed upon her by her masters, was unable to bring it about. All Parnell's eloquence failed of the same end. But at last there is prospect, that in the present day self-government for Ireland.

As for the "Home Rule-Home Rule" style of argument, it is to remember that historians, eminent for their broad and unbiassed views, have united in according to Irish Roman Catholics credit for very great tolerance toward their conscientious of an opposing faith. In the present day, Lord Inverclyde, Protestant though he is, has declared—among many others of his creed and class—that in religion the Catholics of Ireland have been, perhaps, the most ostensibly pious in the world.

It would seem as if Home Rule would mean the ostracism of Ireland. Even now, when, compared with her condition in the terrible penal days, she is being floated along on downy beds of ease. She is still governed under one of the most oppressive forms of government ever known in the history of mankind: a system twice as expensive as that of Scotland or Belgium.

Of the oppressions under which she suffered in the past, Lecky says, "The continuous prohibition which ruined Irish industries, the confiscation of Irish land which impoverished and demoralized the nation, were all directly due to the English government and the English people."

And now the opponents of the National cause in Ulster—many of whose ancestors were driven from lands confiscated from the Irish owners—cry "Be quiet!" when there is any talk of the Irish managing the affairs of their own country. It all reminds one of the story of the new comer in a railway carriage, who, squeezing himself into the place of an occupant, exclaimed, upon being expostulated with, "Whist! let us have peace."

But to-day the times are ripe for another tale. Twice within twelve months a Liberal government, pledged to Home Rule, has been returned by the voters of the United Kingdom. Moreover, the reform of the House of Lords has changed the hereditary, ancient institution into one which cannot continue to thwart the will of the people.

The Irish have been wandering long in the wilderness. They have drunk deep of the bitter waters of tyranny. At long last, however, self-government, which will enable them to deal with their own problems in their own way, and which, best of all, will restore to them their self-respect, is in sight. As the late Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman pointed out in one of his great campaigns: "Even good government can never be a substitute for self government."

God save Ireland!

'RED ROSE" IS BLOOMING AGAIN IN BOSTON

Valeska Suratt Comes Back, Bringing Her Riotous Musical Comedy to Hollis.

A rose by any other name might smell as sweet, but, gweshkikins, where is "The Red Rose" and whose form as sumptuously as it did on the boards at the Hollis Street Theatre last night there's more class than Romeo in his noisiest moment ever thought of. There it was all beauty, with Valeska—the name is unique and the individual even more so—and Alexander Clark—you have to mention "Alexander" last name—and all the rest of the principals and that gorgeous chorus. "The Red Rose" is truly some show.

Anybody with an eye for beauty couldn't help but admire the wealth of feminine charm and the brilliance of feminine apparel that was exhibited especially by Miss Suratt. One scarcely can estimate the cost that she wore a dozen gowns during the course of the riotous musical comedy. It was a baker's dozen too.

In that first scene one gets a glimpse of a big art studio in gay Paree. In the second comes a French garden just as gay. The latter was the one in which Miss Suratt dances most charmingly in the dance of the three Graces. Saturday night a triumph in its way.

Miss Suratt is handsome and dashing, and all that. Her gowns took the breath away from all beholders in all and gallery and new ones were put on every few minutes, it seemed. Alexander Clark was the comedy she was blue ribboner and gold medallist as well.

Alexander Clark was his usual self-

Valeska Suratt (in the centre) and some of her dancers in a scene from "The Red Rose" at the Hollis.

and that means tiptop. He is one of the real funny men of the stage, and his lines are just as shaky as ever. Once seen, they are never forgotten. The rest of the cast is capable. The chorus is worth going miles to see.

"The Red Rose" has started in for a two weeks' run. From the size of the audience that took it in it would appear as if Miss Suratt—and the rest—could stay on for two years and not wear out their welcome.

Keith's.

Charles Kellogg is the feature at Keith's this week. He made a big hit at the opening performance. Mr. Kellogg possesses rare vocal power which enables him to sing in the same tones as the birds. It produces notes that are octaves higher than the top note singers of the grand opera stage.

An interesting feature of Mr. Kellogg's act is the singing of Pagliacci. The flute is about half an inch in diameter and is produced by Mr. Kellogg who, that when the high notes of a bird tone strike the flutes, even at a distance of a hundred feet, the flutes dance, although the ordinary human notes have no effect upon it, imitating the singing of the birds, he makes the flutes dance.

Mr. Kellogg also has another pleasing diversion. Bringing two sticks together in a sort of grinding process, he produces fire. He claims that this trick was taught him by Indians and challenges anyone to produce fire in such a way.

Gus Edwards and a company of thirty, entitled "Vaudeville," in a song revue which greatly pleased the large audience last night. The scenic effects and costumes are pretty, and several pleasing songs are sung during the different scenes. Le Roy and Harvey had a clever act depicting experiences of a pretty girl who attempted to look for a missing card. The act is bright and draws many laughs. Jimmy Lucas, impersonator and singer, was very clever. Bell and Boyle appeared in a neat singing and dancing act. Conway and Leland and Thomas P. Holer had the star role, caused much laughter. DeMont and Nugent appeared as Italian musicians and proved strong in the clarinet work. The three Escardos made a big hit in their tumbling act. The bill was closed with daylight moving pictures.

Grand Opera House.

"Another Man's Wife," a musicdrama in four acts, with scenes in Boston and Provincetown, Mass., is this week's attraction at the Grand Opera House. Comedy, romance and thrilling adventure are delightfully blended. J. August Gustam, in the role of Edgar Moore, gave a capital performance. Edwin Varney, John O. Hewitt, Annie Hughes and Cora Lingham were others in the capable cast who won applause. Addie H. Alvah, Ida Higgins and Ned Carleton provided some pleasing specialties.

The play tells the story of a wealthy young scapegrace who becomes entangled with a simple country girl, marries her and then tries to free himself. While one of the big scenes is laid in Boston, most of the action takes place in Lexter, Vt. The atmosphere of a real country village is maintained true to life throughout.

National.

Mme. Fregolia, the headliner at the National Theatre this week, is one of the most accomplished impersonators who has ever appeared on a vaudeville stage in Boston. Two wonderful protean acts are included in her sketch and the lightning-like rapidity with which she makes the several changes leaves the audience to believe she is working with a dozen. Mme. Fregolia marvels with all the stage as one character, when she reenters again in another role. She plays every character in the play and her change from one to the other is nothing short of marvelous. Every change she makes is finished and complete to the minutest detail.

In "A Husband's Return" she is at her best and her audience is kept guessing for many minutes. Her impersonations of famous composers have never been surpassed in this city. Mme. Fregolia also has an excellent voice, singing soprano or tenor equally as well.

Although the great impersonator tops the bill she is by no means the whole show. All the other artists are above reproach, the Ackerman and Stevens, Master Gates, the boy soprano; Hayes and Wynn, the Monarch Clayton, Finley and Drew and the Palots.

The Plymouth.

The Irish Players continue to draw crowded houses at the Plymouth Theatre. Their offerings last evenings ranged from the broadly humorous "Workhouse Ward" by Lady Gregory, to the poetic and beautiful play, "The Hourglass," by W. B. Yeats. The "Workhouse Ward," another light comedy by Lady Gregory, and "Pybarji Tear," a one-act playlet by Johanna Redmond, completed the bill.

The greatest interest centred around the little playlet written by Miss Redmond, daughter of John Redmond, the famous Irish statesman, since the first time it has been produced on this side of the Atlantic.

Vividly portraying the Emmet uprising of 1803, "Pybarji Tear" tells in a stirring way the story of a young Irish peasant who was led to the point of betraying his comrades-in-arms in order to establish peace. His fearful remorse, later, when his comrades are executed, and when he finds his brother died from wounds received during the street rioting following the revolt, and the rest of their little band of patriots, forms a fitting climax to which she makes the several characters lead.

"The Jackdaw," produced in Boston for the first time, tells the story of the downfall of a certain Mrs. Broderick in trying to secure the title of "Lady" for her son. She has been summoned into court.

This sentiment is finally brought about by money supplied by her brother, through the third person in which she makes the revelation by declaring that her brother supplied the money by selling her soul to the devil. All the backdowns in the neighborhood immediately are offered at a sale.

The lines in this comedy are not as bright nor the humor as pronounced as in Lady Gregory's other plays. But the production and cast are quite up to form, considerable laughter and numerous bursts of applause.

Orpheum Theatre.

Silverado, a sensational and also exceedingly attractive lady trapeze performer, headed the new program at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. An announcement appears on the bill says the Mexican is a singing and talking act, but Silverado and Stippes, who had an exceedingly novel act. New motion pictures were also shown.

Howard Athenaeum.

The Broadway Gaiety Girls dropped in at the old Howard yesterday for a week's stay. In the olio of specialties are a lot mostly of attractive young women who fairly radiate youth and beauty, and make the show worth while in addition to the regular burlesque. Two or three good vaudeville features were offered by the house as an extra attraction.

Gaiety Theatre.

Bob Manchester's "Crackerjacks," one of the most attractive burlesque shows that found began a week's engagement at the Gayety Theatre last evening. More than a score of pretty chorus girls are in the company.

Waldron's Casino.

Hurtig and Seamon's new burlesque entertainment, "The Social Maids," opened at Waldron's Casino yesterday. Two large audiences were captivated by this entertainment.

Austin & Stone's.

Gumbo 2d, one of the most intelligent educated apes in captivity makes as the chief attraction at Austin & Stone's Museum. A new musical show called "A Western Romance" was the offering in the theatre yesterday.

South End Theatre.

The new program at the South End Theatre yesterday included several vaudeville numbers that were entirely new to Boston. The list also included a number of Kalem motion films that had never been seen here before.

Scenic Temple.

A new program of high-class vaudeville and motion pictures was presented at the Scenic Temple yesterday. The bill was thoroughly enjoyed by large audiences.

Hub Theatre.

Psycho, an electrical wonder, astonished the audience at the Hub Theatre yesterday by his ability to withstand tremendous dynamic shocks. Besides several vaudeville numbers there was a large list of new motion pictures.

Plays That Hold Over.

Always popular in its musical comedy selections, the Castle Square Theatre is compelled to hold over "Excuse Me," "Fun From Broadway" into a second week—which began last evening. Mary Young Scholl's most fascinating Mary Jane Jenkins in this merry up-to-date comedy.

"The Musical Revue of 1911" began a new week at the Shubert Theatre last evening. Al Jolson and Stella Mayhew are easily the hits of the show while handsome Charles Winninger with his velvet voice is one of the chief attractions.

"Billy B. Van in "A Lucky Hoodoo" began his second and final week at the Globe Theatre last evening.

"Get Rich Quick Wallingford" continues its remarkable success at the Park Theatre where it is destined to run for many weeks.

The final week of "The Round Up" was begun at the Boston Theatre last evening. This is one of the most novel American melodramas ever produced.

"Excuse Me" entered upon its final two weeks at the Tremont Theatre last evening. But few farces of recent years have found more success in Boston.

Charles Klein's interesting drama, "The Gamblers," entered upon its second week at the Majestic Theatre last evening. Jane Cowl, Orme Caldara and Charles Stevenson display remarkable skill in the portrayal of Mr. Klein's admirable characters.

"The Red Widow" entered upon a new week at the Colonial Theatre last evening. While it is a cheerful mixture of farce, the dancing of Gertrude Vanderbilt is one of the attractive bits of the performance.

Next Week's Plays.

The popular detective play, "Arsene Lupin," will be the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre next week.

"Oliver Threeds" will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House next week.

BEATTIE HAS NO FEAR OF DEATH

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 10.—Sentenced to die in the electric chair on November 24, Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., does not display fear over what the future holds in store for him, according to his home friend, William Sampson, who visited him recently, and who reports Beattie as saying:

"I'll show them how a man should die, if that's what they're waiting for. The electric chair? Bah!

Nothing, I tell you. If the lever on the switchboard is near enough to me I'll turn on the current myself."

"When a man's got to die, let him die like a man, without a whimper.

"But there's the Supreme Court. It shall not get to act on this case before everything is over.

"I suppose some people are glad I'm in this fix."

REJECTED SUITOR BELIEVED KIDNAPER

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Complete mystery to-day surrounds the strange disappearance of fourteen-year-old May Leads, who is believed to have been kidnaped while on her way to school from her home in the Ninety-third street. Detectives are baffled. The only suggestion of a clew was given Mrs. Annie B. Leads, who was made a widow two years ago, that the child was mysteriously disappeared from the streets of New York, just as her daughter did to-day, and was never heard from again. Mrs. Leads believes the kidnaper is a rejected suitor who applied for her hand a year ago.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—An "intuitive kiss" caused Arthur Walchman, a florist, to be summoned to-day before Judge Sanders. The "intuitive kiss" turned out to be a "peck" on the unkissed kiss—for it never came. Mrs. Tillie Shaw testified that two years ago she employed Walchman to prune a dolly into her lap and tried to kiss her. "Did he ever try to kiss you?" asked the judge. "I had an inkling he was going to." Walchman was discharged.

GAGGED AND ROBBED AND TIED TO RAILS

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Oct. 10.—Bound to the railroad tracks after having been beaten, robbed and gagged by highwaymen, John Rudzinski, a well-known local character, was found early to-day in the yards of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad by a railroad crew. He told the police that the highwaymen overpowered him with their fists with revolvers before robbing and tying him to the tracks.

"Get Rich Quick Wallingford" continues its remarkable success at the Park Theatre where it is destined to run for many weeks.

The final week of "The Round Up" was begun at the Boston Theatre last evening. This is one of the most novel American melodramas ever produced.

"Excuse Me" entered upon its final two weeks at the Tremont Theatre last evening. But few farces of recent years have found more success in Boston.

READING UNDER BIG PRESSURE

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Price movements were narrow and trading was without any special importance at the opening of the stock market to-day, except in the case of Reading, which suffered from heavy pressure.

The selling of Reading came from the same source that supplied the pressure of late stock all day yesterday. Despite the rush of selling orders support kept Reading from fluctuating widely, the price changes being confined in ⅛ of a point. At the end of fifteen minutes trading Reading's price was unchanged from Monday's close.

American Beet Sugar, after a slight rally, declined ⅝. The general movement was confined to fractions. United States opened ¼ up, other initial advances being: Amalgamated ¼, Steel common ⅛, Union Pacific ⅛, Southern Pacific ⅛ and Southern Railway ⅛. The aforementioned support, found late yesterday, had a slightly replenished effect to-day.

The Curb opened steady. American and Canadian Pacific were firm in London.

HEAVIEST MAN IN UNITED STATES DEAD

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 10.—The burden of carrying around 650 pounds of his own flesh became too much for Jacob Schober, and he died at the age of fifty years.

Schober, as far as is known here, was the heaviest man in the United States. His obesity brought on an illness which began a year ago. He was six feet tall. His coffin will be three feet three inches wide and will take twelve pall-bearers to carry it.

MOTORCYCLE RIDER INJURED BY AUTO

Albert F. Standish, nineteen, of No. 569 Highland avenue, Malden, is in a critical condition at his home. Standish was riding a motorcycle on his way to a lodge and was riding on the right side of the road when an automobile, said to have been owned by a Boston chauffeur, attempted to pass an automobile bound for Boston, and in turning out crashed into Standish.

SUIT TO RECOVER 20-YEAR-OLD BILL

WORCESTER, Oct. 10. — A suit for $1,000 to recover on a twenty-year-old board bill has been filed at the Clerk of Court's office here.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The Government crop report shows that corn has held its own so that the final crop this year will be something above 2,700,000,000 bushels. The estimate of the wheat crop is reduced slightly. The report is important only for the fact that it stops all dispute as to the size of the crops, which are now officially determined as being the equivalent of about 900,000,000 bushels of grain less than last year. A general report on all crops will be issued by the Government to-day.

$ $ $

The Government has moved to advance for an early hearing in the Supreme Court its suit against the Union Pacific Railroad Company under the Sherman anti-trust law, on the charge of holding Southern Pacific illegally.

$ $ $

The cut in steel of $2 a ton for deliveries from warehouses that was reported unofficially last week was officially announced yesterday. Retirement of George W. Perkins from the Northern Pacific board is of no significance, as he represented J. P. Morgan & Co. and is succeeded by D. O. Lamont, representing the same interest.

$ $ $

Delay in filing the American Tobacco Company's plan of dissolution is due entirely to the inability of the lawyers to prepare the necessary papers in time. There has been no hitch whatever in the arrangement, and it is understood the plan has been agreed to by the government. The decree will be filed to-day or a day or two later depends entirely upon the speed of the typewriters engaged in preparing the necessary papers.

$ $ $

This plan is much more comprehensive than the general public seems to think. For instance, while there will be, as reported, three large companies taking over the main manufacturing business of the company, there will be, perhaps, twenty smaller ones. The list is exactly as outlined in this column about two weeks ago.

$ $ $

Each of these companies will then distribute, as special dividends, whatever stocks it may hold in other companies. For instance, the American Tobacco Company will distribute as a dividend the stock of the American Cigar Company, the International Cigar Machinery Company, the American Snuff Company, the British-American Tobacco Company, Ltd., and any others that it may own, cleaning out its treasury entirely of securities.

AT THE OLD HOWARD THIS WEEK
FALL
Fall in line, fellows, and see the most comfortable looking babes that ever sang "Come to the Moon Beside" are looking for Howard. They like the sound of "Come to the Moon" saw stunts here that would make the Wright Brothers sit up and take notice. Gaiety Girls are there, too, and if you're a high roller, be on hand at the Howard, there's something doing all the time from 1 till 11.

Broadway Gaiety Girls
Dick Reeve and his girls are of the modern variety—they have originality and that's more than can be said for O'Neill, Fred Irving Delmar and a chorus both pulled away from the rose in burlesque. Gaiety Girls is a class act in Burlesque.
Also a dandy, continuous show that runs smoothly through the waiters.

Activity in Politics a Duty of True Citizenship

In the Case of Mr. McNamara It Should Not be Considered as Reflecting Upon His Eligibility for the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration

Governor Foss has appointed Lot F. McNamara of Haverhill to be a member of the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration in the place of Ex-Senator Morse. This is the second time he has appointed Mr. McNamara to the same position. On the first occasion Mr. McNamara was not confirmed by the Council. The AMERICAN hopes that the Council has gained in the meantime more information concerning Mr. McNamara's character and ability and training.

A certain Boston newspaper, in a criticism of Mr. McNamara, declares that he is too active a partisan in politics to be fitted for such a position, although admitting that no criticism of his character can be made.

This is the kind of opposition which it is most difficult to meet. To judge a man unfavorably on account of an alleged temperamental unfitness is to put your judgment beyond exposure if it is in bad faith, because a judgment based upon a man's temperament is wholly a matter of opinion.

Fortunately, however, this public criticism of Mr. McNamara has made it possible to appreciate the accuracy and value of the criticism by basing it upon the fact that Mr. McNamara has been an influential and active Democrat in his city and district. There is a class of men whose neglect of the duties of citsenship or whose inability to command influence causes them, as a matter of sour grapes, to affect to crush activity in public affairs as the indication of a second rate man.

But members of the Governor's Council know better. They know that an honest man, who does not make a business of politics, but who is nevertheless active and influential in the public affairs of his community, is usually a high-class man.

Such a man is Mr. McNamara. He has a full complement of the attributes of the ideal citizen. He was chosen three times to represent his district in his party's national council. His city has honored him often with important positions of public trust. He has reared a large family and built up a good business. His public activities have abated nothing from his parental obligations or his business success.

To reject him because his activity in politics shows a temperamental unfitness for the place, is utter nonsense. No greater absurdity could be perpetrated than to hold Ex-Senator Morse in his job by rejecting Mr. McNamara for temperamental unfitness displayed by his participation in politics. Those men must smile in Essex County who know how completely politics was the business of Mr. Morse, the present incumbent, when he took office. The place was given to him as a political job.

Probably the friends of Mr. Morse misrepresented Mr. McNamara to the Council. If so, then the opportunity is afforded them to correct their mistake.

But if it is the purpose of the Council to hold ex-politician Morse in his political job, let it be done without any cowardly quibbling concerning Mr. McNamara's temperamental unfitness.

With all due respect to Mr. Morse, and the AMERICAN knows no reason why it should not respect him, he is the last man who ought to permit his friends to urge politics as an objection to Mr. McNamara.

Trying an Experiment

The Republicans at the Parting of the Ways

The election in Massachusetts is the most important election in the country this year.

It is of vital interest to the stand-pat reactionary corporation faction of the Republican party. Upon the success of Mr. Frothingham and his stand-pat ticket will largely depend the future of the Republican party in the nation.

It is perfectly plain that the Wall Street representatives in the Republican party of Massachusetts are trying an experiment for the observation and benefit of the stand-pat faction of the party throughout the country. That experiment is to learn whether it is safe to crush every particle of progressive sentiment in the party, refusing it any concession and giving it no place in the party.

Therefore, the Lodge and Crane element of the party has boldly flung away the policies of Roosevelt and of Taft, when he was a candidate seeking the support of the followers of Roosevelt.

They have crushed Walker and White—the one who was independent on the tariff question, the other who was independent on the railroad question.

They have boldly nominated a man to be their figurehead who is remarkable for nothing except the most extraordinary corporation stand-pat record—worse, far worse than the record of even Senators Crane and Lodge.

Their rallying cry is the Republican organization. They are trying to call intelligent Republicans to the party standard as if they were the dumb-driven peasants of Russia rallying to the support of a despotism which oppresses them.

It is an experiment to ascertain whether habit will prove a stronger force than intelligence. Every intelligent Republican knows that the party of Lodge and Crane is no longer the party of Lincoln.

Will Republicans follow the reactionary figurehead of the Lodge and Crane faction of their party? It is the power of old habits which the Republican machine is testing now, while Wall Street looks on with keen interest.

If Mr. Frothingham should win, Wall Street will give no quarter to the progressive reform sentiment of the country.

But if Frothingham loses, the Republicans who want their party to return to the tenets of Lincoln and to put the interests of the whole people above the exploiter's greed, will take heart again.

Is that honest Republican sentiment which aroused itself to vindicate Glavis and Pinchot, which drove Ballinger from the Cabinet, which saved Wiley, which elected Foss in Massachusetts, Wilson in New Jersey, Plaisted in Maine, which forced a reciprocity treaty, repudiated the Payne-Aldrich infamy—and so reorganized Congress as to obtain a revision of that scandalous tariff—is this powerful sentiment which gave Roosevelt his tremendous majorities subsiding?—that is the question which the citizens of Massachusetts will be the first to answer.

I KNEW WHEN THE AERO PLANES WERE IN-VENTED THAT THEY WOULD BE FOLLOWED BY SIMPLER VEHICLES OF AIR TRAVEL. WHY HAVE —
POWERFUL MOTORS WHEN WE CAN SOAR LIKE A BIRD— WELL— THERE'S MY BUILDING —
GRACIOUS! I'VE HIT IT INSTEAD OF ALIGHTING IN FRONT OF IT!
I WAS TO AT-TEND A DIRECT-ORS MEETING IN THIS BUILDING TO DAY— I HOPE I SHALL NOT — BE PREVENT-ED FROM DOING SO! IT LOOKS QUITE GLOOM-Y BUT I—
I MUST APOLOGIZE GENTLEMEN FOR ARRIVING HERE IN THIS MANNER BUT MY AIR PLANE
WELL, I DECLARE! AN OLD MAN LIKE YOU FALLING OUT OF BED! WHAT AILS YOU?
DREAMING MY DEAR! DID YOU THINK I'D DO IT FOR FUN?

Flag of the Free

Colonel Dunn, chief marshal of the Columbus Day parade, in a general order to his division marshals, directs them to see that the American flag is carried at the right of the line at the head of each division or company. If a division or company reports, says Colonel Dunn's order, without an American flag, it cannot have at its head any other national standard.

In harmony with this patriotic sentiment is the following poem from the pen of the late Charles F. Donnelly, prominent Catholic citizen of Boston and for many years a leader at the Boston bar.

The poem will suit the air of the favorite ballad, "Robin Adair." It was written in 1861 at the outbreak of the Civil War and was a stirring call to arms of Americans of the Irish race in defence of the nation's unity and honor.

Would we desert you now,
Flag of the Free,
When we a solemn vow,
Flag of the Free,
You from all harm to save,
Made when we crossed the wave,
And you a welcome gave,
Flag of the Free?

Whose aid to cheer us came,
Flag of the Free,
When to proud England's shame,
Flag of the Free,
Famine swept o'er our land,
Death ravaged ev'ry band,
And loosed the tyrant's hand,
Flag of the Free,

Are we now cowards grown,
Flag of the Free?
Would we you now disown,
Flag of the Free?
You to whose folds we fled,
You in whose cause we've bled,
Bearing you at our head,
Flag of the Free?

Could we desert you now,
Flag of the Free?
And to black traitors bow,
Flag of the Free?
Never! Through good and ill,
Ireland her blood will spill,
Bearing you onward still,
Flag of the Free.

The Moving Picture Craze

By JAMES W. McGEE.

THE moving-picture craze has spread like measles through the land, and every town and village has its own peculiar brand. The cities like the rural scenes, with pumpkins, corn and hay; the country wants the city scenes, the Bowery and Broadway.

The vivid views of "Western life" the small boy greets with glee are only meant for Eastern States and Eastern eyes to see. The Southern views of "darky life" the pictures claim to show would get a cool reception where the cotton blossoms grow.

The great, immortal Washington can nowadays be seen to cross a feral Delaware with ice cakes painted green. Napoleon, too, is pictured on the field of Waterloo; the field looks quite familiar with its peaceful Squantum hue.

The fiery steed Napoleon rides would not be known to-day as one that drew a milkman's cart for years along the way. But moving-picture scenes are apt in most peculiar ways to fit the public's latest fad—the moving picture craze.

The Man Who Can't Go Back

By DAMON RUNYON.

I'VE seen him down in Borneo, a-workin' in a store;
Half naked, and most starved to death he looked:
I've seen him strut in Paris when he had the dough galore,
And as an able seaman seen him booked.
And always when I see him he has the same old say;
He speaks o' home and wants the news about the U. S. A.,
And hums a little ballad, w'ich the burden o' his lay
Is, "Some day, when I go home!"

I've seen him in the Argentine, a jockey for his meals
(You mind he rode for Baldwin, long ago);
I've heard him on the Panama and heard his soft appeals
At Juarez, where he'd let his whiskers grow.
And always when I see him I find he dreams a dream
O' home, w'ich is the States, you know, and o' a silver gleam
O' lights that crown the cities, and he lets off all his steam
On "Some day, when I go home!"

I've seen him down in Algiers, in the Frenchman's foreign corps;
I've seen him in Alaska, froze to death;
He worked an automatic in Estrada's rag-tag war
And helped Spain run the Sultan out of breath.
He's walloped docks at Lisbon, and I've seen him eat a meal
With natives in Tahiti, but I never heard him squeal
About his fate: he only pulls that never-endin' spiel
On "Some day, when I go home!"

I've watched him dealin' seconds in a Red Sea liner's game,
I've seen him kneel in Rome, as if in prayer;
I've seen him play it fast and loose with some fair, furrin dame
And sidestep many and many a well-laid snare.
He's just outside the statute and the extradition law;
He's quick on skin' strangers up, and quicker on the draw.
But quicker still in loosenin' the rein upon his jaw
With "Some day, when I go home!"

Boston Nature Notes

By SAM SMALL, Jr.

THE modest violets are showing their tender blue and fairy-like faces along the lanes and byways. They can be seen nestling against a background of silk or satin, or topping the shirt and belt line. How charmingly they match with a pair of flashing blue eyes or contrast with the roses that these nipping days bring to the cheeks of the violet buttoner.

Modest violets. At $5 to $50 the bunch they must have a custom nerve to look a man in the face!

Chestnuts are amiss in season, and all signs point to a plentiful and varied crop. We should say that the chances on chestnuts gathered now are about even, with the odds growing as the season progresses.

Chestnutters are out in force during the days and evenings, and the pungent smoke from their smoulder-ing fires is caught ever and anon as a welcome whiff in the pervading odor of the product from the factories.

We haven't heard from the goose-bone or our other neighboring prognosticators, but there are some signs that we have noticed which point the way of the coming weather.

* * *

A large quantity of malt in the shape of brown October is being put away all over the community, we are reliably told, by the big roots. At the Hayward Street Country Club several barrels are put away every day, and the boys laugh and sing at their work.

It is a curious thing that the harvesting of brown October should bring forth so much gayety. It is entirely different from the gathering of, say, the potato crop. But a group of harvesters working together on brown October sooner or later break into song.

Brother Joel tells us he has garnered his frijole beans, and that chile is now in season. Joel also brought into our community a Bohemian hop of the early mashing species, which is best about the time the frost is gathering on the dew falling. These imported things change the customs, as well as the bedtime, of many of our neighbors.
